The bliss of growth...

There are many ways for Seaholm students to grow within the realms of academics in the school curriculum. All departments offer a wide range of electives so that students need not be bogged down in general courses. The elective program was extended after success with the English department program which began broadening its horizons to the student in 1972.

Many Seaholm students are already using their knowledge to help others in the community. Volunteer work at area elementary schools was elected in place of study hall by many students. Others find that donating time teaching Sunday School classes and participating in church youth groups a good way to grow within their community.

Challenging courses motivate Seaholmites

"English can be interesting" is a statement that can be made about English at Seaholm this year. Students had a variety of motivating courses from which to choose.

For the student who liked to read, literary courses ranging from Great Books, Shakespeare, Poe and Twain to Science Fiction and Short Story were offered in ten week segments. For those who liked to talk, acting, radio speech and speech classes were held. And for the budding writers, Developmental Skills, Comp I and II and Research Paper graced the schedule. New survey courses in English and American literature were offered on a semester basis.

English offerings vary

Seaholm's English offerings can be described in one way as those involving students in activity programs and those dealing with literature and composition. The former are quite popular with many students.

The dramatics sequences provide experiences for students in a wide area. Acting I-IV can be taken for ten week periods or Dramatics I and II can be taken for a semester if a more in-depth study is desired. Speech I is offered at the high school level for those who missed it at junior high and a more advanced course, Speech II, prepares students for contest speech work. Radio Speech is more specialized as are courses such as Children's Literature that emphasizes acting out stories, etc. for young children.

All of the preparatory journalism courses emphasize practical work while the students learn the theory. TV, film making and other 'work' courses give the student a chance to create something for others to enjoy.

Variety dominates English

Variety is the English department's middle name. Ever since the mini courses were started three years ago, students have had the opportunity to pick and choose from almost seventy classes. A multitude of literature courses and a handful of writing courses attract the serious English student to a study in depth of their particular literary field.

This year survey courses in English and American literature re-appeared for a semester long period. Poe and Twain, Hemingway and Steinbeck, Science Fiction, Gothic Novels—these are just some of the ten week courses open to all classes. For those who want to structure their own reading, Independent Study offered a chance to students to do just what they wanted to do.

Writing experiences ranged from paragraphs in Comp I to a formal term paper in Techniques of Research Writing. The latter, by the way, was very popular.

1. Leslie Weissler and Lori Wetlaufer perform in Children's Theater. 2. Reading a poem of Walt Whitman's in American Literature are Jim McCarthy and Delores Kerr. 3. Ken Hanna and Paul Rondeau read. 4. Enjoying her Shakespeare class is Shaun Costello. 5. Sharon Eisle, Duane VonStorch and Lisa Dickhout participate in Science Fiction. 6. Mrs. Swart gets ready to show a movie to her English Literature students Mike Hague, Leslie Pilling, Brad Balow and Melinda Matice. 7. Term paper workers Tom Monahan, Kim Thomas, Rob Morrill, Damian Zikakis and Greg Yu all work diligently.

Block classes study History and English

Block, or American Studies, is a one year course offered to the juniors combining the American History requirement and one English credit. Some examples fo typical units are in "The American Dream" and "Man and His Environment." Because block lasts for two hours, there is more time for activities, movies, presentations, seminars and speakers than in the normal classroom.

The classes took a field trip to Greenfield Village early in the school year and another bus tour of Detroit. The students also presented the annual Block Follies to the rest of the school. Student planning is an important part of the course.

Flex unique to Seabholm

Flexible Scheduling, or Flex, is unique to Seabholm. It involves about 180 students and six teachers in a three-hour, three year program emphasizing the humanities along with history and English. The program utilizes core, elective and independent study around a basic question or theme. All students receive core material through the reading of books, hearing speakers, seeing movies. Electives are either student or teacher led seminars. Flex encourages independent study and self-motivation.

Most students stay in the program for three years. Juniors and sophomores take gym together while seniors take American Government as a group.

The Flexam on the China unit was an open book written essay but it was just as difficult to Dan Doctoroff and Chris Duris.

Seaholm offers brainy courses

A top academic offering was once again provided by Seaholm's mathematics department. Ranging from the ever popular geometry and algebra classes to the more sophisticated calculus and probability and statistics courses, the math department contained a suitable course for everyone.

One new course, Computer Math, allowed students to learn the basics about programming computers.

The math instruction given was top notch as reflected in the first place finish of Leonard Levin in the Michigan Math Prize Competition and the testimony of recent graduates when comparing Seaholm's courses to their college work.

Math instructors: Mr. Graham, Miss Herman, Mr. Hoeksema, Mr. Kish, Mr. McDaid, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Sackett, Mr. Thumser, Mr. VanDragt, Mr. Wallendorf.

Social studies broadens curriculum for variety

This was the second year in which students could choose from a variety of specialized, ten week social studies courses. These mini-courses were offered in addition to the traditional, year-long and semester classes. The mini-courses offer the student more choice and also an opportunity to choose a particular teacher while studying certain areas of history more intensely.

The area of the world which seemed to interest most people was our neighbor to the north, Canada. The continent of Africa also intrigued many students. Making the latter course more interesting was the fact that its instructor, Mrs. Taras, lived there for three years working in the Peace Corps program. There were also courses on Russia, China, Middle East, Latin America and even the British Islands.

Not only does the social studies department offer courses about other parts of the world but they also have courses that deal with the United States. For one who is interested in our past there is Frontier and the Westward Movement or Industrial America. Contemporary American Problems is for the student who is concerned about the issues we face today and how to deal with them.

Other ten week courses are Environmental Studies and Anthropology. The latter is being extended to a semester next year. All these courses help to round out the social studies offerings, giving the student a chance to learn more about the places and happenings around him.

1. Listening intently to a lecture in China, an area study, are Liz Cusulas and Cathy Coffey; Lisa Landers is in the same class. Note the striking bulletin boards in the class room. 2. Students of the Africa area study class participate in a mock slave ship in their study of this social happening. 3. Thea Schwarz points out a location to Mrs. Taras. 4. Social Studies teachers: Mrs. Bauer, Mr. DeVero, Mr. Drager, Mrs. Kilpela, Mr. Myers, Mr. Richards, Mr. Scott, Mrs. Taras. 5. Mr. O'Donnell looks at the work accomplished by Anne Eames, Brent Bracco, Loran Barnett and Mike Fishman on an Anthropology assignment. 6. Reporting to her American Frontier class is Jeanne Koistinen.

History remains popular for teens

The traditional social studies courses are still popular despite the recently added "mini" courses. Many students still follow the once required pattern of World History as a sophomore; U.S. History as a junior; government plus one of the electives: Social Psychology or Economics as a senior. Another course offered primarily for seniors is Modern European History.

World History is the study of the world's political systems, economic systems, social structures and also religions. The history of our own country from beginning to present is studied in U.S. History. The only required social studies is American Government. Students find themselves learning more than they ever imagined about our government and the laws which govern our society. Other traditionally senior electives, Social Psychology and Economics, have opened up in the past few years to include juniors and even a few sophomores. Social Psychology is an introductory course to psychology and sociology. Economic principles, consumer economics, the stock market and the business world are the principal topics covered in Economics. Modern European History is another course which can be elected by juniors and sophomores. The class follows the development of Europe from the pre-state period to its present state.

Giving her opinion of what started World War I to the Modern European History class is Francie McLeod. 4. Informing his economics class on some consumer information is Mike Jamagin. 5. Kris Johnson and John Deacon take a perceptual concept test in social psychology using cards with colors, shapes and numbers printed on them. 6. Judge Alice Gilbert speaks to government classes on her career in law.

Chemistry is elected by many students

Chemistry courses this year are, as usual, filled to capacity with promising, hard-working students. This is the third year that the science department offered two different chemistry courses to meet the potential of more students.

Basic chemistry is offered for the students of average ability in math. It covers the area of chemistry at a more descriptive and factual level. The aspects of chemistry are also covered in less depth than in the chem study course. This latter class delves into the field in a more theoretical manner interpreting the facts that are learned. There are more areas of study covered in this course and at a faster pace than in the basic chemistry course. Both classes, however, are college preparatory and study such things as kinetic theory, particle structure, energy of reactions, equilibrium and chemical bonding. As far as the amount of homework is concerned, both classes require an hour nightly.

1. Craig Frye and Joni Gabeline are assisted by Mr. Valentine. 2. Doing an experiment with her partner is Kim Smith. 3. Jean Staples and Lori Sommers work together in their chemistry class. 4. Science Department teachers: Mr. Ambrose, Mr. Bedor, Miss Collins, Mrs. Cooch, Mr. Hackett, Mr. Harris, Mr. Stephen, Miss Stoner, Mr. Valentine. 5. Science is enjoyed by serious students

Several science classes besides chemistry were popular this year. Biology students studied life in most any form by dissecting frogs and crayfish. This class had an overall theme of ecology with the basic emphasis on relationships among living things. Biology II was also taken by many this year. It proved to be exciting for the students as they studied life in a more detailed manner.

This year science took a new turn in the area of physics. PSSC became self-paced and students took learning into their own hands. This course was advanced with students working on a high level. HPP was a laboratory course with a historical and philosophical approach to the study of physics.

In physical science, the subject matter of chemistry and physics is studied but not as extensively as in the specific courses. Emphasis is placed on using specific processes to discover patterns that exist in the physical world.

1. Mr. Meade and Lisa Dolik show that German can be both educational and a lot of fun. 2. Miss Chesney emphasizes an important point to her French class. 3. Using a visual aid, Mr. Stiles projects Alicia Brinkman's Spanish assignment on the wall. 4. Mrs. Ball, Miss Chesney, Mr. Cooch, Mr. Karseboom, Mr. Meade, and Mr. Stiles. 5. Mr. Graham answers Michele Colling's question in Latin. 6. Lori Demlow, Kim Hooker and Scott Miller listen attentively to a dialog presented by French instructor Mr. Karseboom. 7. Mr. Meade tutors Sally Chamberlain and Bill Hartman in German III during his free hour.

Offer four languages to Seabrook students

Seabrook's foreign language department provides students with opportunities to enroll in four languages for up to five years of study. Anyone interested in obtaining basic knowledge and pronunciation sufficient for traveling purposes can take a French or Spanish travel language course while others, who want a thorough background can take the regular French, Spanish, German or Latin instruction.

Much use of oral drills and the language lab give variety to the classwork. Experienced teachers allow the student to progress according to individual ability as the classes are tracked.

Home Ec offers variety

Home Economics at Seaholm is divided into two major divisions with Mrs. Fleming teaching the foods and clothing classes and Mrs. Mills handling the family relations and child development courses. A new course, Personal Psychology, was also taught this year; it introduces the student to basic psychology and gets them to apply what they have learned to themselves.

In the foods classes, students are required to design a kitchen besides learning to prepare and serve foods, including a foreign meal. Field trips to such places as Detroit's Greek Town, a meat packing plant and a dairy processing company enhanced the course this year. The Clothing I class is a general one teaching primarily the basic sewing techniques. Clothing II requires a tailored jacket or coat as a project. Homeplanning stresses the elements of a floor plan, furniture arrangement and home decoration.

Contemporary Family Life examines married life today. Such topics as mate selection, life styles, and problems of financial and sexual adjustments are discussed. The growth and development of children is covered in Child Development. A highlight at the end of the course is a pre-school age nursery school for the younger brothers and sisters of class members.

Industrial Arts students learn drafting, graphics

Two industrial arts sequences involving communication are drafting and graphic arts. In the first, the art of communication utilizes lines and numbers. The student draftsmen begin by learning the basics — they learn to draw shapes with accuracy and consistent lines of all different kinds. Then they start to reproduce drawings and finally they draw from actual models. Teaching the drafting courses this year is new instructor Mr. Ritter.

Graphic arts is communication through the printed media. Future printers are first taught the history involved in this course. Then they are taught to set type which will be used on the platen presses or to make reproduction copies for the offset printing process. The use of cameras and plate making equipment is still another part of the process taught. A favorite aspect of the course is silk screening — here students can print on their tee shirts different designs of their own creation.

Shop classes attract students

Some of the more popular course offerings are industrial education classes. Power Tech, a favorite among students, provides more than basic instruction in the assembling and disassembling of engines. Students study basic scientific concepts of why an engine functions in a particular way and how it converts energy.

Two other popular courses are Architectural Drawing, and Pre-Engineering Drawing. As the names imply, these courses are for students who plan to pursue a career on one of the many fields that require drafting experience. The electricity courses introduce students to the common applications of electricity by studying the identification of components, wiring, and construction of simple electric devices. Electronics continues where Electricity left off with the study of transistors and new concepts in electronic theory.

SEOVEC instructs students

SEOVEC stands for Southeast Oakland Vocational Education Center. To juniors and seniors attending the center, it offers an opportunity to acquire meaningful skills for occupational areas in which jobs are available. These students attend SEOVEC for part of their school day and their home school for the other.

Courses offered at SEOVEC range from Food Service to Electronics. There are three shifts of classes: morning, afternoon and evening. Students come from all the surrounding school districts to take advantage of the county offerings.

Students can prepare themselves for entry into the job market upon graduation or they can continue their education at a community college getting an associate degree in a two year program.

1. Roy Miller works in Electronics at SEOVEC. 2. Enjoying her Commercial Art class is Mary Isabell. 3. Making a flower arrangement in Floral Design is Shannon Smith. 4. Working in Cosmetology, Jody Lee sets a model's hair. 5. Patty Betts puts cake on a shelf in Food Services. 6. John Liebold is one of the many who take Auto Mechanics. 7. Forest Hudson and Jamie Forcier work diligently in Building Construction. 8. Looking at her finished drawing in Architecture is Kim Miller. 9. Examining one of the presses in Graphic Arts is Bruce Zoschnick. 10. Mike Cramer takes Commercial Art at SEOVEC.

Clay, fiber, metal form art

"Our artist-craftsmen are bringing innovations to traditional materials," says Mr. Tall, Seaholm ceramics teacher and system-wide chairman of the art department. "The handwork exhibited by the students displays both artfulness and usefulness." Art has long been an outlet for men to communicate his expressions of personal feelings and ideas. Seaholm art classes attempt to inspire those already interested in art and those others who simply desire to learn what it's all about.

Annually, new changes are made in an effort to modernize the art curriculum. This includes buying new material and equipment to work with and up-dating the general curriculum for the interested learner to choose from. The current schedule lists a wide variety of fiber and cloth classes, sculpture in various medias and ceramics.

Seaholm boasts two new instructors in the field of ceramics replacing Mrs. Nichols who retired last June. The morning shift is taught by Mr. Tall from Covington Junior High and the afternoon classes are under Miss Fleming, a former Seaholm student, and now a professional potter who manages her own studio. Miss Fleming has conducted several one woman art shows.

1. Gazing over his potters, Mr. Tall offers advice to Lindsay Costello and Dave Scott on how to improve their wheel-throwing techniques. 2. Taking advantage of a fresh supply of yarns, weavers Denise Sica, Maree Jo Engel and Maggie Fitzgerald get to work on new projects. 3. To give it a final shine, Happy Babbish polishes her ring on one of the buffing wheels found in her jewelry class. 4. Intently watching is Ed Pilcher as Dave Murphy pours the plaster in the first step of creating their subtractive sculpture. 5. Cutting a foot on a pot can be easy if you use the wheel, discovers Julie Pingel. 6. Offering assistance is only part of the job being a ceramics teacher finds out Miss Fleming as she helps Beth Maxwell with a problem. 7. Before firing her hand-built pot, Karen Martindell smooths off some of the rough edges.

1. Creating another talented piece in cartooning class is Penny Gibbs. 2. Determination on her face, Thea Schwarz begins a figure-drawing assignment. 3. A demonstration of pen-and-ink is given by Miss Switzer to attentive Judy Johnson and Carolyn Dorsey. 4. In printing class Ann Byerlein is supervised by Mr. Wheeler. 5. Learning the basics is all part of painting knows Kris Webel as she creates a colorwheel. 6. Art can be messy work, especially when using India ink discovers Peter Pryde. 7. Art Department staff: Mr. Cavanary, Miss Fleming, Miss Switzer, Mr. Wheeler. 8. Completely engrossed in his assignment, Mike Hepner brushes on a little more color.

Paint, pen and pencil design

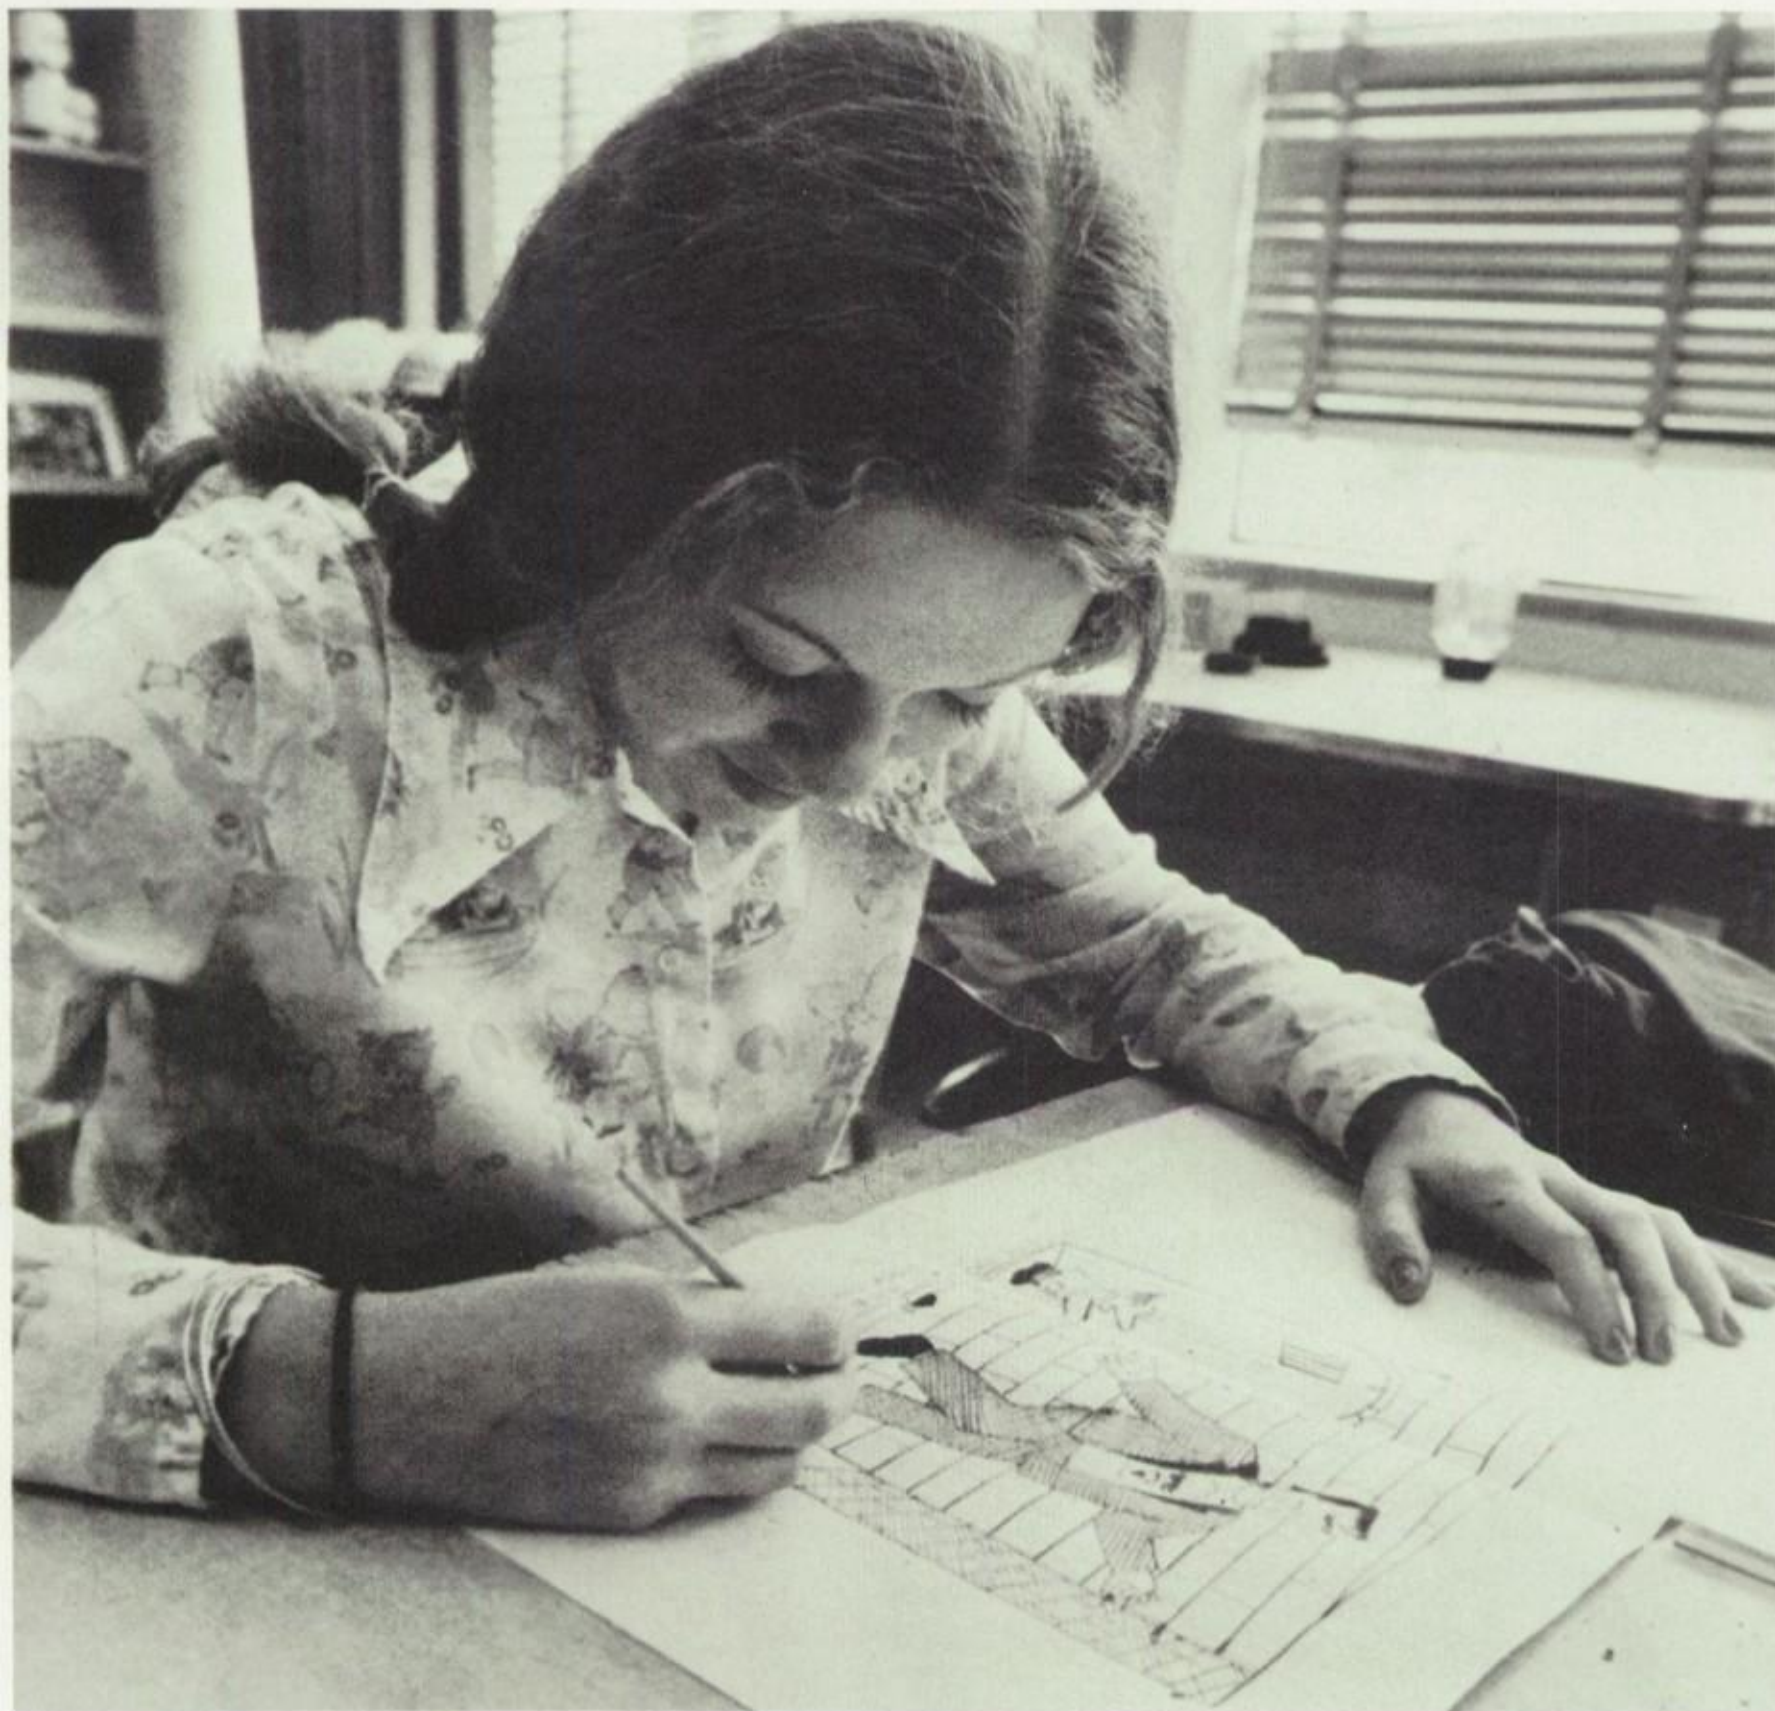

"In art, it's the atmosphere that is important," points out artist-teacher Miss Switzer. "The atmosphere must be relaxed so the students can concentrate and use their imagination to create." It is the dream of every teacher to have a distraction-free classroom, but it takes both the integrity of the teacher plus the co-operation of the students to attain this.

Drawing and painting classes have always been considered the most popular courses offered here. There are over twenty of these 10-week and semester courses listed, including a wide variety of categories beginning with the basics and working up to advanced, self-directed areas of that particular media or else drifting into related interest studies such as cartooning, fashion-drawing or even lettering.

This section of the art department also includes various printing courses which make painting more of a craftwork, using carving tools to cut out a design onto which paint is applied and pressed on paper to form pictures.

Wide variety of sports available in gym class

A wide variety of physical education courses are available to Seaholm students. Required in both sophomore and junior years, gym is optional for seniors. Senior gym is co-ed, however, and that makes for more fun and interest as the boys and girls choose their activities from choices as diverse as bowling to touch football. Some emphasis is placed on leisure time sports that can be enjoyed after graduation.

For the underclassmen, a more structured program is offered but still a choice is there. Team sports such as basketball, volleyball, field hockey, softball and football are played, weather permitting. Individual sports such as tennis and swimming are taught. Many changes have made gym more enjoyable.

Business ed courses teach, train students

Many types of business education courses are offered at Seaholm ranging from those that build personal skills to those that actually train a student to hold down a job.

Personal typing is by far the most popular course giving the student instruction on how to type, prepare school papers and write letters. Notehand and shorthand are two other courses that offer the students basic skills in learning how to take notes quickly thus improving their academic performance.

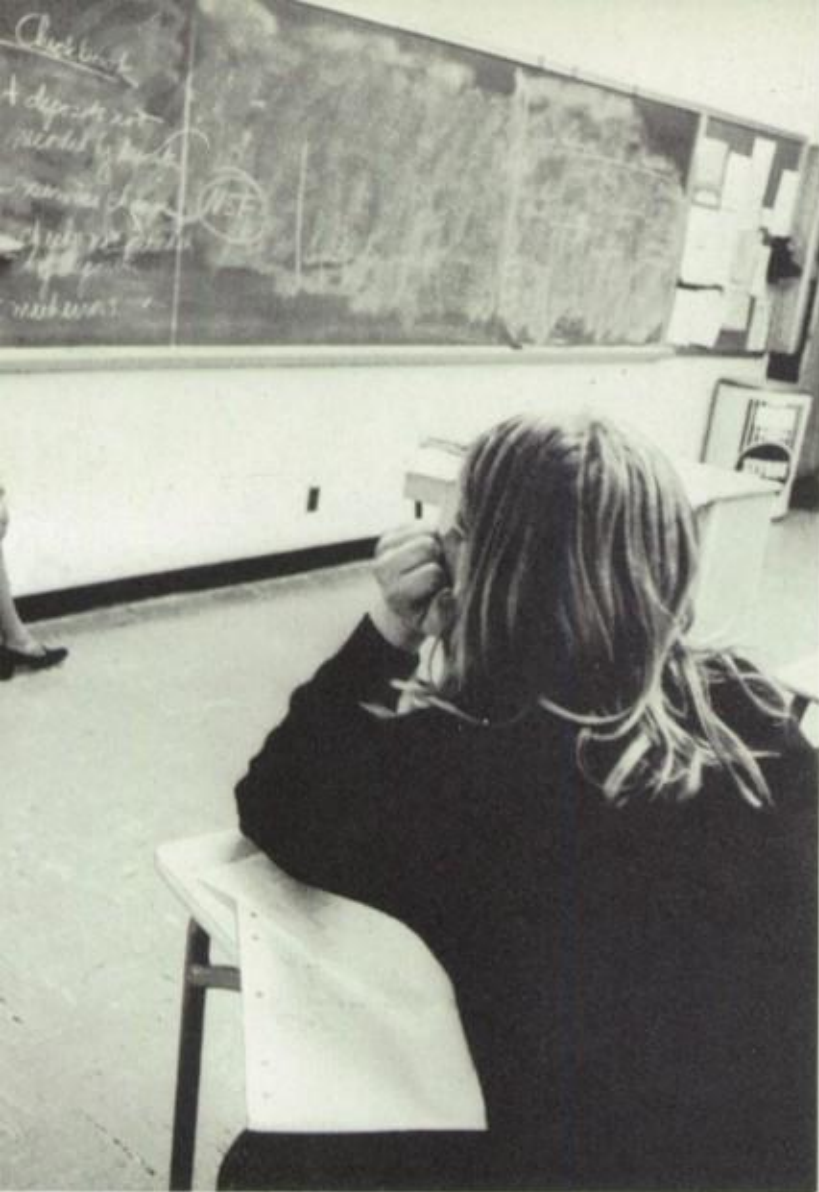

More specialized courses such as accounting and co-op provide advanced training that will qualify a student for a job. General courses such as business law and business math round out the business education curriculum.

Workers devote hours at school

Many groups of students offer their services to Seaholm High. Office helpers give up their study halls and sometimes their lunch hours to help the secretaries in the various offices around Seaholm. The students answer the phone, file schedules, stuff envelopes for mailing, record attendance and do countless other small tasks that are time consuming.

Library workers labor alongside the librarians and mother helpers to keep the library functioning as efficiently as possible. Some of the students receive class credit for their work while others do it just for the self satisfaction of helping out. The students check books in and out, reshelve the books, and generally make themselves useful.

The students who labor in the cafeteria have one big difference in their work — they get paid. These students collect the used dishes, silverware, and trays for the huge dishwashers and also work behind the serving counter.

1. Miss Chalmers goes over a class schedule with Denise Sica. 2. Discussing a prospective college with Mary Irish, Miss Jackson recommends one of the state schools. 3. Counselors work to assist students

Most students visit their counselors at least once a year, so they get to know them pretty well. The seven student advisers are always busy working: they assist the students in planning class schedules and they help students choose a college.

The department heads are responsible for deciding which teacher is going to teach each course. They supervise teaching, order supplies, and serve as an advisory committee to the principal on curriculum matters. Mrs. Westerby works as secretary to both counselors and school department heads.

Active leaders work

Trying to keep a big school like Seaholm running smoothly is a tremendous job. Principal John Schulz, aided by Dr. Russell Curtis, Mr. John Leaver and Mrs. Marilyn Schlain, accomplish that task in an efficient manner.

Mr. Schulz leads the faculty in the educational process, decides policy questions and represents the school in the administrative council and the community. Dr. Curtis, as second-in-command, operates the school on a day-to-day basis. Mr. Leaver is always busy on attendance problems while Mrs. Schlain is in charge of all extra curricular activities.

A fine staff of secretaries aid the administrators. They are directed by Miss Mary O'Donahue, the principal's secretary.

School Board members solve several difficulties

This year's Board of Education was busy and controversial. It was so controversial that, after they had voted to close two elementary schools and Barnum Junior High School in June, 1976, a petition drive to collect 7,000 signatures for a recall election was started. Whether such a campaign would be successful was not known in late April.

Other items that the Board had to deal with included the negotiation of a new teacher contract. This was successfully done in late March before the Easter vacation thus insuring labor peace in the district for two years. The Board also proceeded with the evaluation of programs offered in the school district and made plans to continue the high standards that the district enjoys.

Three of the board members are parents of Seaholm students, giving Seaholm and its problems a triple chance of being considered. Mr. Dixon has two daughters, Jenny and Sally at SHS; Mrs. Hartwig has daughter Cathy attending Seaholm; and Mrs. Eicker's daughter Nancy also is a Seaholmite.

Teens volunteer work

Volunteering is a special way of saying "I care." It's also a form of self expression.

The wide variety of activities available to young volunteers is endless. Traditionally, there are the service organizations such as Scouting that are open to all. While Senior Girl Scouts are still active, a lot of interest centers on the co-ed Explorer Posts.

Youth groups such as Common Ground and U-Turn get help from teenagers. Other community organizations such as the Red Cross, hospitals, the Community House, charity drives also get volunteer help from Seaholmites.

Many teens also volunteer through the school to aid community organizations and earn a quarter credit for 100 hours of work.

1. Explorer Post 1030 has many Seaholm members including Dana Larson, Scott Goodson, Tim Swarb, Rick Phillips, Leslie Leydorf, Ginger Plier, Paul Beaven, Chris Goodson, Marcia Plier and Becky Whitcomb. 2. Marcia Plier keeps busy with work given to her by Mrs. Hobyak at the TB office. 3. Dave Lalley applies for a job from Miss Doonan, a representative from the Community House. 4. Carol Meissner helps out a child on Midvale's playground. 5. Hiking for Common Ground are Trish Griffin and friend. 6. Walking in the same fund raising drive are Cindy Jensen and John Andrews.

Big parent efforts truly benefit school

Involvement is a key word for Seaholm parents. The school benefits daily from their continuous and often unnoticed efforts in all areas, both academic and extra-curricular.

The Parent Teacher Student Association is a well established organization that has consistently provided Seaholm with enrichment programs and much needed equipment. Currently they are working with the site committee to improve the courtyard and are co-sponsoring an all-school art show.

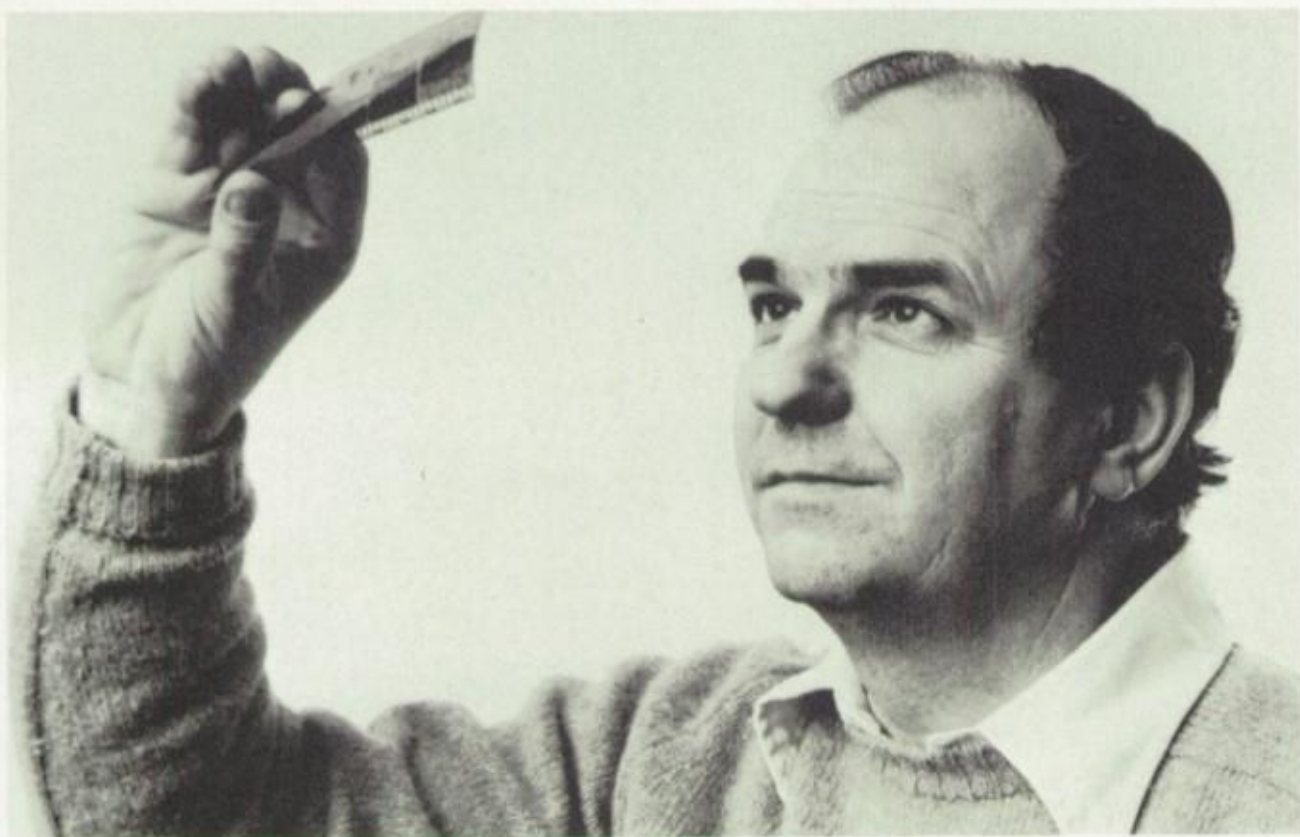

The Boosters Club supports the athletic teams and cheerleaders by enthusiastically helping publicize and finance the program. They sell refreshments, print programs and sponsor award dinners. Their money goes to improvements in the athletic facilities like resodding the baseball diamond.

Other parents, singly or in groups, help in the classroom, library or provide extras for the music or speech programs. Parents also serve as dance chaperones.

Discussing a values clarification assignment in their youth group are Ken Barnes, Becky Whitcomb, Mark Colonese and Barb Nichols. 4. Preparing for Birmingham First Presbyterian's version of "Our Town," Kim Harris makes up Margee White. 5. Elaine Masters shows her talent.

Youth entertains

Churches today offer great opportunities for youth. A chance to express oneself through art, acting or group discussions are highlighted. Several church youth groups produced plays for the public. Frequent campouts and retreats are planned monthly by many such groups and there is usually overwhelming participation, since these are notorious fun for everyone.

Most churches and synagogues sponsor a weekly youth meeting. These groups are an entertaining and challenging way to explore changing values and morals, as well as have fun at the same time.

Open House attracts many

Despite miserable weather conditions, hundreds of parents attended Seaholm's annual Open House in early November to meet their teen's teachers and go through an abbreviated day's schedule. Parents roamed the maze of halls and many would have been lost in the depths of the school if it had not been for the student ushers who directed them safely into classrooms.

Members of the faculty explained the courses to the parents and answered general questions. In most classes, student work was displayed and in some, students were present to demonstrate their class work. A sneak preview of Charley's Aunt was given in the auditorium for those interested.

While it is evident that seven minutes spent with an individual teacher or class will not provide all the information that parents want to know about their child's education, those minutes can give an insight that wasn't there before.

1. Discussing careers with Mrs. Schlain is Dan Doctoroff. 2. Kit Warrick and John Clohset review a U of M bulletin. 3. U of M admissions director Lance Erickson explains procedures for interested students Don Murray and Greg Nordhougen. 4. Luke Vermeullen listens intently to an admissions officer. 5. Questions are answered by a rep while inquiring students Jeff Muhn and Donna Breuer (and Mrs. Breuer) look on. 6. Taking a break between ushering chores are Jenny Booth, Pam Burbott and Barb Herrick.

College night attracts crowd

College Night '74, a joint venture of the Birmingham and Southfield high schools, was hosted by Seaholm this year. Almost 700 students and their parents attended the sessions that attracted some 58 Michigan colleges and universities. While the biggest crowds were present at the two well-known state universities—U of M and MSU—scores also visited the reps of lesser known state schools to find out pertinent information about the college of their choice.

Comments from students present at the event ranged from “a waste of time” to “very informative and interesting.”

After an assembly which explained the details of admission procedures, students and parents had the opportunity to visit up to three college representatives for more information about higher education. One thought that seemed to come through from the evening was that colleges needed students as well as students needing a college, a change from the recent past when colleges were much more restrictive in admission policies.

Hockey attracts students

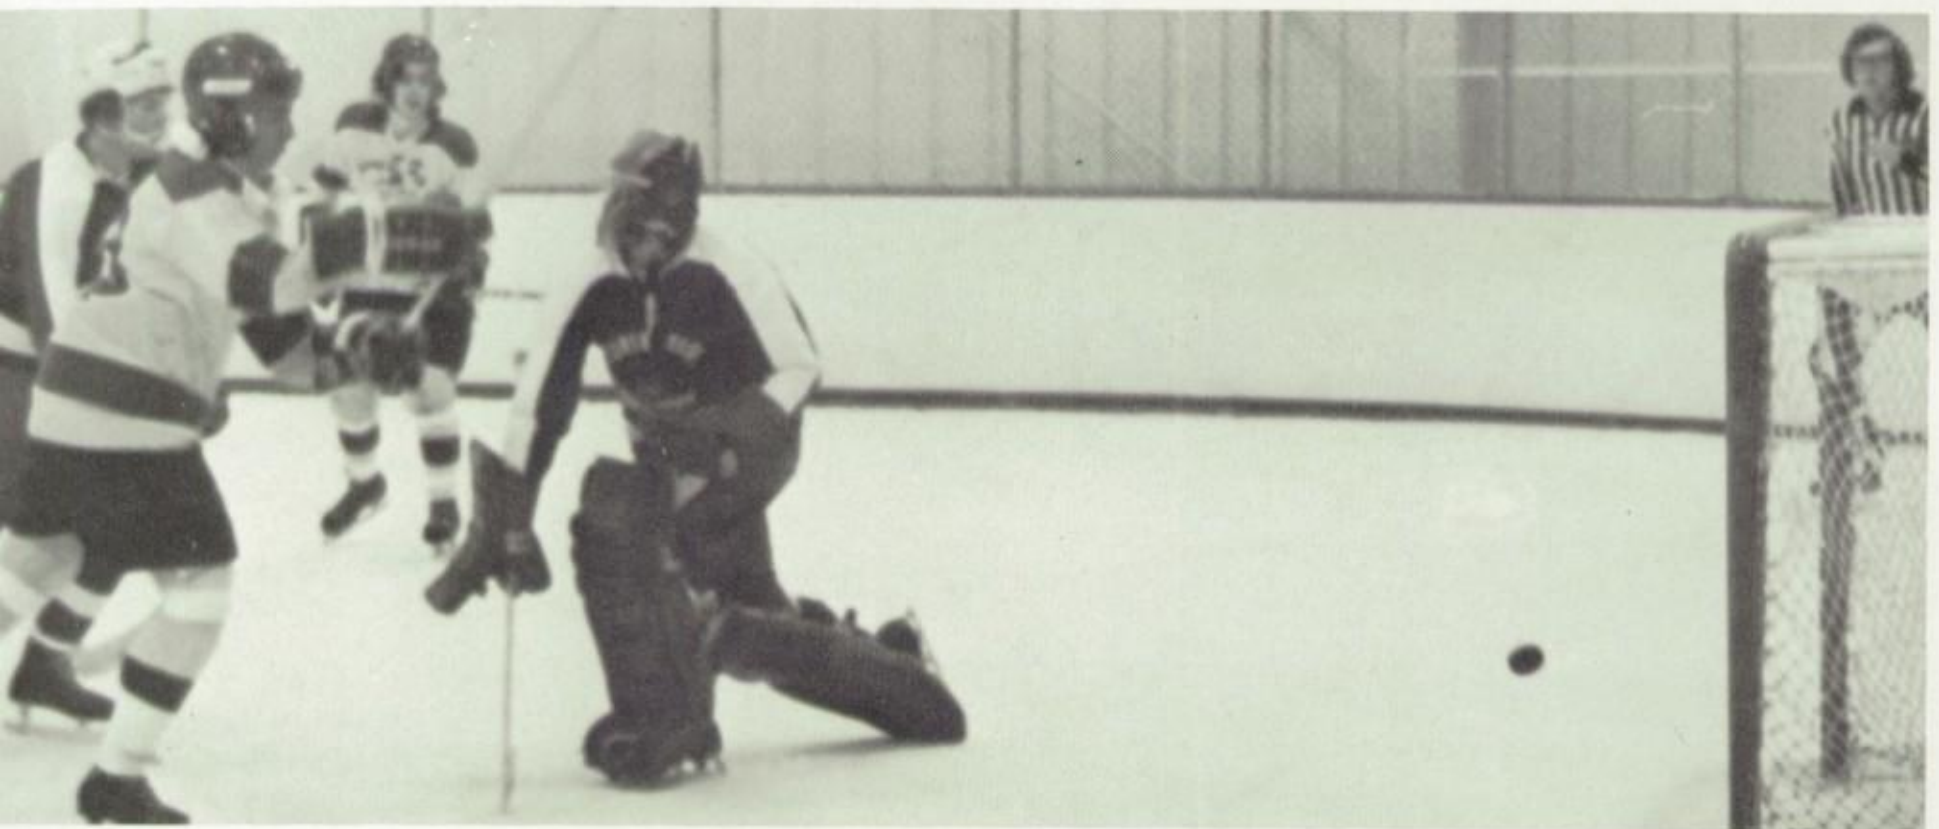

The fast and exciting game of hockey attracts much interest at Seaholm despite the fact that no varsity sport exists like it does at neighboring Brother Rice. So boys who want to participate in this rough, hard-hitting sport must join one of the local amateur teams.

Hockey has much of the appeal of football with the added glamour of performing on ice. It demands flawless teamwork, a combination of physical skill and strength, alert minds and much enthusiasm. This hobby forces individual players to play fair, cooperate, show a competitive spirit, and have respect for authority and the rules.

Hockey games are played on the Birmingham Ice Arena ice at all times of the day and night.

Students enjoy hobbies

A hobby can be almost anything a person likes to do in his spare time. People take up hobbies because these activities offer enjoyment, friendships and relaxation. Sometimes they even yield financial profit. Hobbies help students relax after periods of hard work and they provide variety for those who do the same monotonous tasks all day long.

Hobbies play an important part in the extra-curricular activities at Seaholm. Several Seaholmites deserve mention as representative of hundreds of others. Sophomore Bruce McMaken, a bicycle racer, placed fifth in last year's state championships held in Milford. On weekends while not training, Bruce may travel to Northern Michigan, Ohio or Canada to participate in meets. Skier Tom Toulmin spends a great deal of time practicing this popular outdoor hobby. Even though he has skied for years, he still enjoys "hot dogging" many hours at Pine Knob Ski Resort. Another Seaholmite, Wyndham Gary, has completed his training to obtain a pilot's license. He rents his planes and usually flies from Pontiac Airport. His hobby has involved a lot of hard work but has proven to be quite enjoyable.

JA is experience

Junior Achievement is an organization designed to give an insight into the business world to teenagers. It reviews all aspects of business—sales, manufacturing, distribution—while trying to give an understanding of these practices to young people organized into JA companies.

At the beginning of each year these companies are organized, officers selected, stock sold to raise capital, and product manufacturing begun. Everyone works towards a major goal: making a profit. But secondary goals of initiative, co-operation, dependability are also achieved while working together with new friends.

JA is a rewarding experience that is also fun.

FOR 1975, FORD AND LINCOLN-MERCURY DEALERS OFFER THEIR WIDEST, FINEST NEW CAR CHOICE EVER.

17 lines. 63 models. Including the new Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch leading the way for new cars during the rest of the 1970's.

The cars at your Ford dealer. There's exciting news at your Ford dealer for 1975.

Ford Granada

Beginning with the new Ford Granada. Designed to give you efficient use of space, fuel and money.

And the new Ford Mustang II with an even more luxurious Ghia model and an optional V-8 available on all four models.

For full-size luxury there's the new Ford LTD Landau, offering features found in more expensive luxury cars for a sticker price that's hundreds of dollars less.

Ford Mustang II Ghia

Looking for economy? Your Ford dealer offers the basic, durable Ford Pinto and Maverick, the proven family compact.

The 1975 Torino offers more standard equipment than we've ever offered in a solid mid-size car. The Ford Elite combines mid-size economy with styling and luxury in the Thunderbird tradition. And the elegant Thunderbird is more luxurious than ever for 1975.

The cars at your Lincoln-Mercury dealer. For 1975, your Lincoln-Mercury dealer is proud to announce the new precision-sized luxury car — the Mercury Monarch. Created in the European tradition of sensible size, weight and operating economy. And Mercury Comet, the only gas-slingy family compact with a little Cougar luxury in it.

Mercury Montego offers the gas economy of our mid-size car plus the riding comfort and luxury Mercury is famous for.

Or there's Mercury Cougar. An uncommonly luxurious breed of personal car for 1975.

Mercury Monarch

If you need a full-size car, take a look at Mercury Marquis and Marquis Brougham. Or the luxurious Grand Marquis for 1975, introducing a level of elegance and convenience never before offered in a Mercury series.

And for true luxury, your Lincoln-Mercury dealer offers a choice: the newly styled Lincoln Continentals or the incomparable Continental Mark IV. Redesigned to challenge the other luxury car again.

From basic to elegant, with everything in between, your Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers have what you want to suit your driving needs for 1975.

Teens profit from jobs

Money is the main reason many Seaholm students take a part time job. In many instances, the job may give the person little satisfaction aside from the pay check but students, like adults, need money to live and buy the things they want or need.

Recent surveys show that students spend on the average $7 per week each or a total of about $360 a year. The majority of this money—for Seaholm it's about three-quarters of a million dollars—comes from student employment. And this amount doesn't take into account major purchases such as family food, home furnishings and clothes purchased for the student.

School expenses alone can account for close to $100 without including senior expenses or J-Hop.

So it is not surprising that students turn to part time earnings to finance their needs. Beginning jobs are low paying as well as somewhat repetitious and unsatisfying to many.

Work educates teens

There is another side of the teen-age job situation. For those who are bored with school or who have a great deal of extra time on their hands, the part time job provides a profitable, learning experience.

By constantly dealing with the public, teens learn to be patient and understanding. They learn to get along with others. They learn skills and work habits that will stand them in good stead in the years to come. In short, they learn by doing.

Teens show loyalty for jobs

Teen-agers who have the desire to go out and seek employment are likely to be above average in ability; they are easily trained and they often bring special skills to the job, utilizing their interests and hobbies to increase their value to their employers. Because their school work comes first, they are available for split shifts at night, when the need for part time help is highest. Their pay is usually the same as adults' but because they are part time, the fringe benefits are less and thus cost the employer less in the long run. And just as teens are loyal to their school, they display the same feeling to the employer who gives them a chance to earn while they learn.

The glory of action...

Many Seaholm students found that time spent in extra-curricular activities was time put to good use. Field Day began the year with a good portion of the school involved. Some hard fought battles were staged, which ended in a slim victory for the class of '75.

Some students found their place in one of Seaholm's many clubs, drama groups, debate teams, or were involved in student government or class steering committees. Student government's main concern this year was helping to fix up the commons courtyard – both students and parents collaborated on this effort.

This year, sports played a large role in creating Seaholm enthusiasm. The state champion soccer team displayed its spirit at football games by carrying signs saying "Seaholm Soccer Supports Football". Spirit was instilled in many Seaholm students whether they were actively participating in or cheering on their favorite teams to victory.

Tight race ends; seniors gain win

Early on the morning of Oct. 4, the halls of Seaholm were crowded with excited sophomores, juniors and seniors as they made last minute preparations for Field Day '75. At 10 a.m. the classes began the march toward the gym; FD was under way.

After introduction of judges Mr. Bill Tall, Mr. Leonard Schwartz, Mrs. Barbara Underwood, Mrs. Ruth McNamee and Officer Phil Duncan, the classes presented their songs and cheers. Pandemonium broke loose with the start of the sports events.

The senior "Pinochios" started out strongly with a first in the flag shuttle relay but ran into trouble in the tug-o-war contests. Seniors captured three other sports firsts but the juniors and sophs were so close that victory depended upon the outcome of the class events. Seniors won participation and cheers; juniors gained the top in banner and costumes while the sophs earned first in marching. With a 106-104 score the seniors got the cider barrel with "no strings attached."

Seniors win big day

"We got no strings to tie us down" proved to be the victorious theme for this year's senior Pinocchios. Led by Field Day chairman Randy Moorhead, the class of '75 swept Field Day events hands down. Wheels began to turn as early as last June when the seniors organized powerful committees under the direction of Sharon Price, marching; Beth Boynton, banner; Tara Sullivan, Kathy Molnar and Pam Schmidt, costumes; Cathy Frye, sports; and Laura Innes, song and cheer.

Once things began to roll, the tension mounted as sports people practiced, costume people measured, cut and designed, and banner people constructed. The big day finally came and rainy as it was, the seniors' spirits were not dampened. Dressed and ready, the class of '75 marched proudly into the gym and began their song and cheer. Cheerleaders Laura Innes, Laurie Kale and Luke Vermeulen put on a show fit for a king. Seniors proceeded to sweep the field events and win the Cider Barrel "with no strings attached" with a total of 102 points.

Field Day athletes work hard to win

Senior class members worked long and hard on their sports events and this labor paid off as they swept Field Day with four victories, five second place finishes and only two thirds. Beginning in early September when FD chairman Randy Moorhead selected Cathy Frye as his sports chairperson, the hard work began. Every day after school and on weekends the seniors gathered in local parks to drill and strive for the best times.

Senior guys and gals started out brilliantly with a flag shuttle relay victory but lagged as both tug-o-war teams were defeated by the juniors. A win in the boys' sack race bouyed senior spirits but losses were encountered in the girls' sack race and the barrel race. 3-legged Pinocchio teams won their contests before the egg tossers ran across some bad luck. Once FD was over, the class of '75 realized that "practice makes perfect."

Class of '76 falls short in quest of FD win

"This year Field Day is going to be different—Seaholm will never forget the class of '76 and Oct. 4 is going to prove that." These were the words of confident Phil Siegel, junior Field Day chairman, as the juniors prepared to win the coveted cider barrel. They didn't, but they did come close.

Junior preparation began early in the summer as committee heads were picked and plans for the big day were started. Construction of the first place junior banner was well under way by September under the direction of Jenny Collins, Libby Braden and Gordon Eason. It was truly a masterpiece but more than one heart stopped as the paint began to run in the rain. Costumes were designed by Kris Tennent; the cheer and song were written by Steve Bottum and Kathy Erwin; the march was choreographed by Mickey Swart and Gene Thieleke. The cheerleaders included Debbie Roth, John Howe and Bill Stokel.

Jr. spirit never pops as they strive to win

Juniors made a splendid showing at Field Day '74, especially in the sports events. Practice began early for the sports enthusiasts under the direction of Mary Jane Chew, Ran Jessup, Tim Griswold and Dennis Thorley. The hard work of these people and the athletes paid off at the end of the day as the juniors garnered five firsts, three seconds and two thirds (unfortunately, the sack race entry was disqualified in the boys' race.)

Both powerful tug-o-war teams won as did a swift barrel race team, a skilled girls' sack race duo and a hair raising boys' egg toss team.

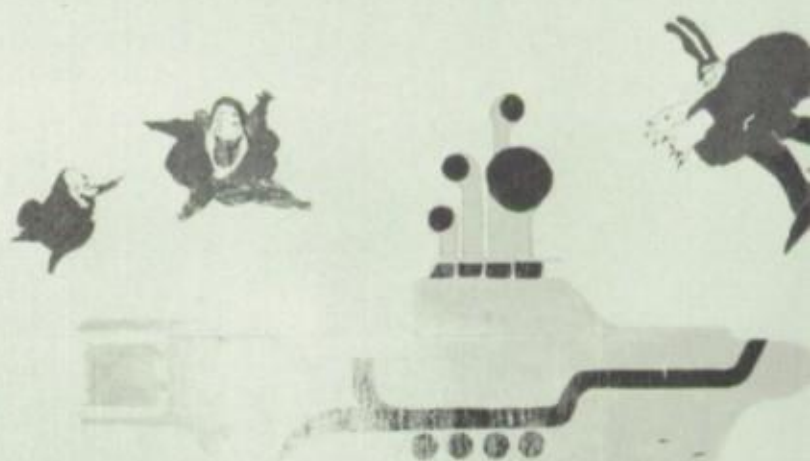

Sophs claim marching win in spirited fight

Strains of "we're going to make history" were commonly heard among the sophomores at Seaholm this year as the confident Class of '77 thought they'd be the first sophomore class to ever win Field Day. They didn't quite live up to their words but they did put up a fantastic fight.

The spirited class was led by cousins Susan Rexford and Wendy Lecklider. Organization began immediately in September with the picking of committee heads. Sports was led by Rich Snee; Brad Zucco and Heidi Bramson choreographed the march; costumes were directed by Karen Staples. The banner was designed by Jan Donaldson and Eve Bradley and constructed by George Joseph.

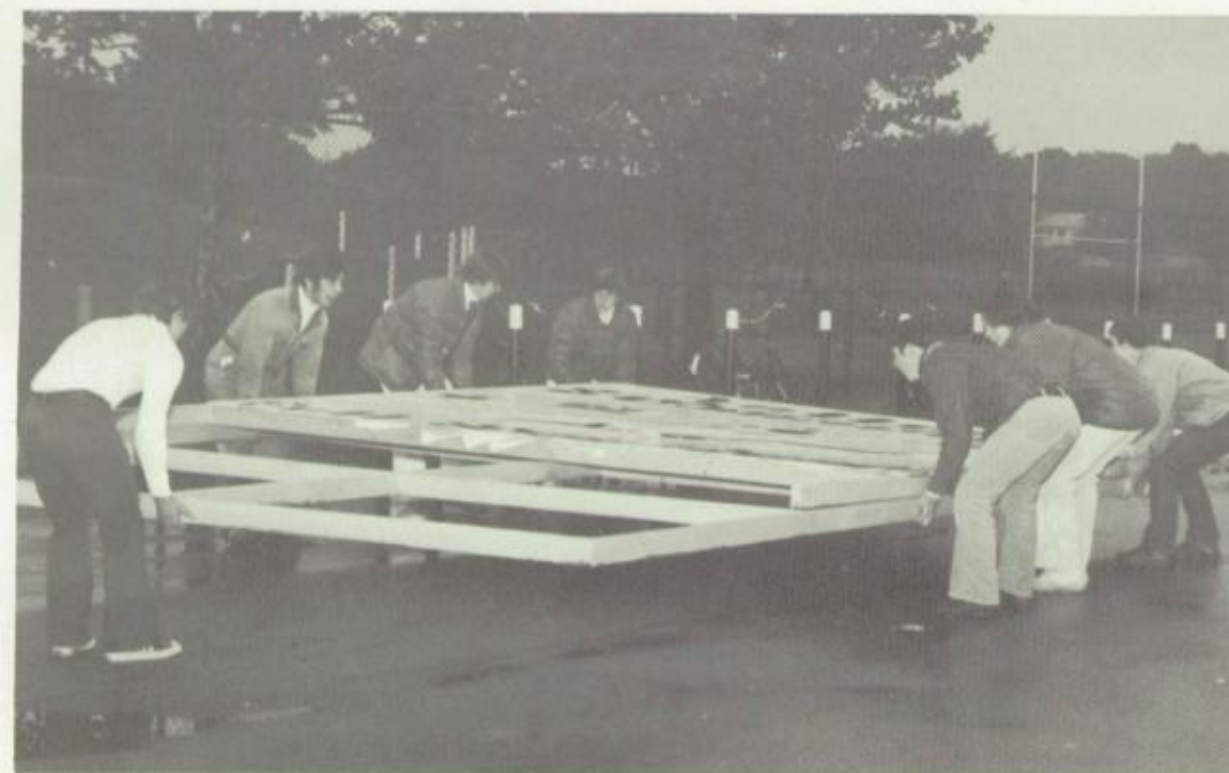

With the evening practices cancelled, the sophomores were at more of a disadvantage than usual. But this didn't show in their performance. They won marching, unusual for a sophomore class, and their overall showing of 80 points gives credence to their new chant "Juniors, watch out! 'cause here we come."

Get ready, set, go! sophs react quickly

"On your mark, get set, GO!"

For the first time sophomores had to react to these commands in Field Day competition, and react they did. Although they came in third in the overall score, they won two first places outright, tied for first in another, and gathered in two seconds and six thirds.

The sophs gained first in the mystery event by pushing a candy kiss across the gym floor with their noses and also in the girls' egg toss. They tied for first in the girls' sack race. They got second in the shuttle relay and boys' sack race. Their fine sports showing portends success in future Field Day competition.

Students work for progress

First semester Student Congress was headed by President Greg Nordhogen, Vice-President Laurie Kale, Secretaries Jayne Arneson and Mary Ann Robb and Treasurer Leslie Paige. President Nordhogen started the group rolling with his "Program for Progress" which included evaluation of the attendance policy, creation of a suggestion box, taking care of the litter problem, and the posting of meeting minutes.

Weekly meetings were held at which homeroom representatives were supposed to attend. But because homerooms were held infrequently, communication was difficult and it was hard to achieve a quorum so that business could be conducted.

Many students discovered, though, that Student Congress was a good way to get involved in their school. It gave them a forum in which to voice their opinions on most any idea and provided a place for students to question the administration on matters effecting them.

Group experiments with organization

Second semester Student Congress got underway immediately at the beginning of the term with the election of new officers. Seniors completely dominated the student government organization which tried out a new method of representation: instead of homeroom reps — some 70 students — the Congress was composed of ten elected reps from each class. This hopefully would result in a more compact, efficient group of interested students.

Sandy Dickerson was president the second semester with Pam Schmidt serving as vice president. Secretaries Tara Sullivan and Lori Sommers helped organize the group while Leslie Paige handled the financial affairs.

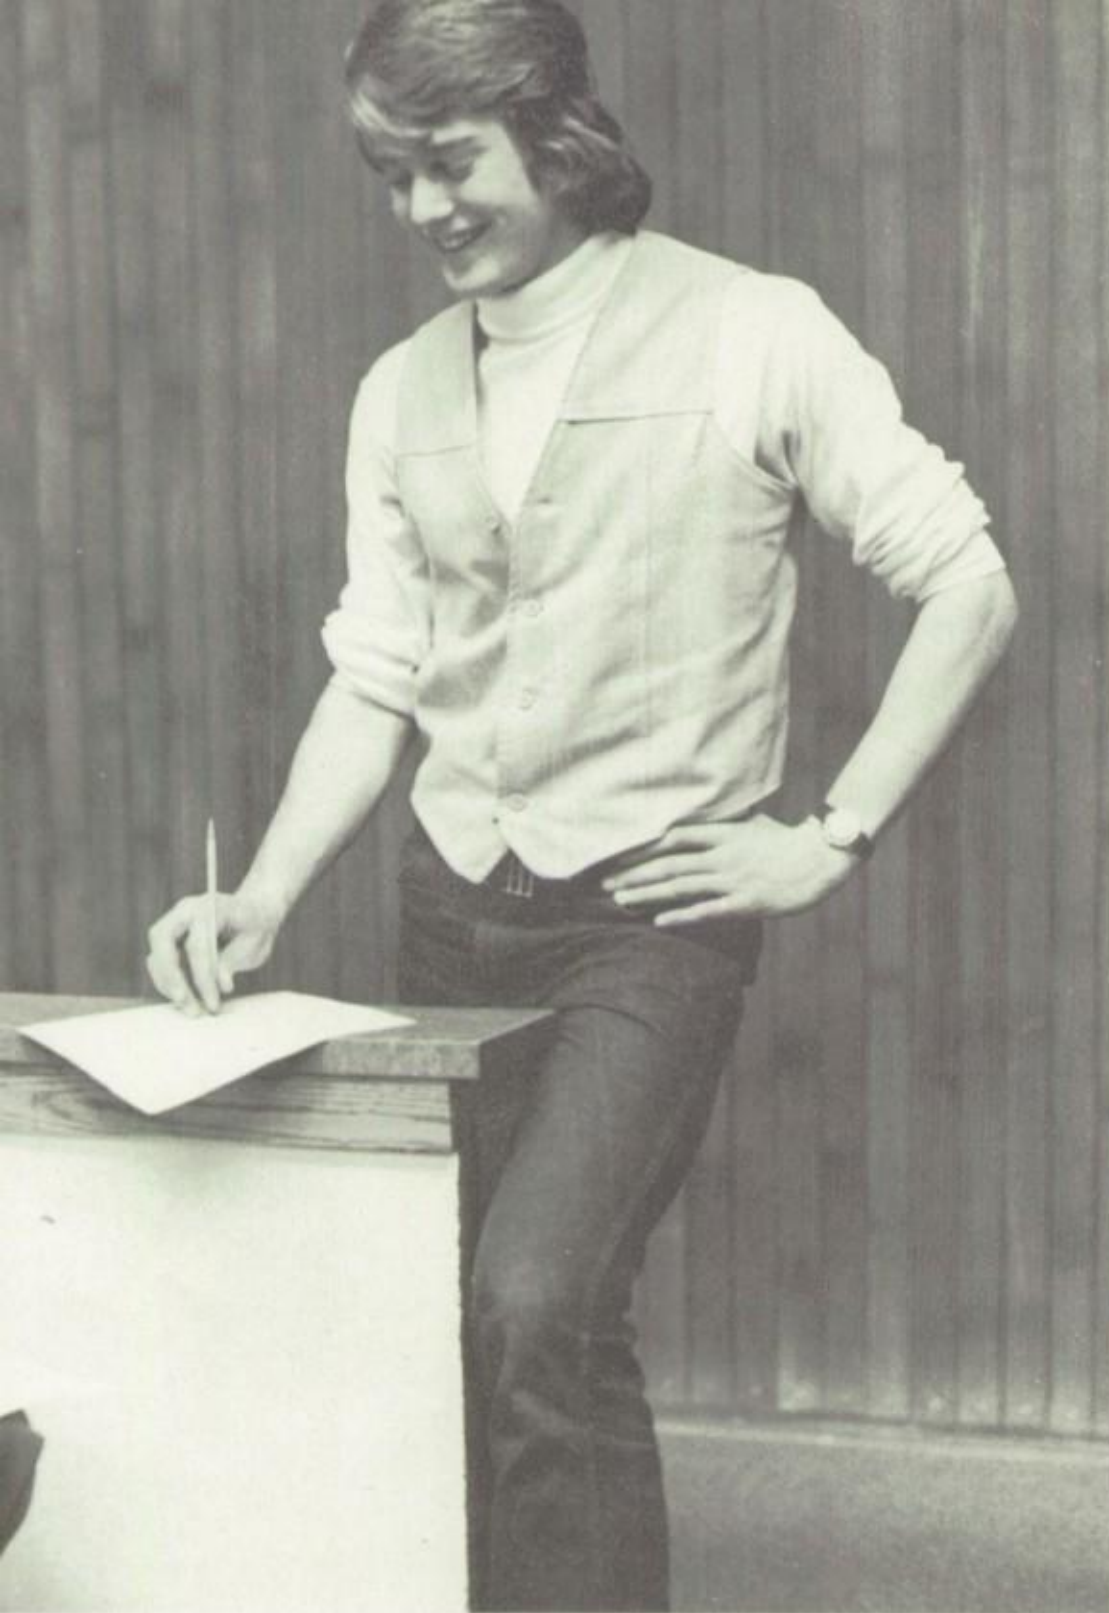

A schoolwide square dance was sponsored by Student Congress and the reconstruction plan for the courtyard was finally drafted and approved. Thanks to Student Congress and its fund raising programs, the "sight for sore eyes" will soon be banished.

BUNA brings variety to SHS student days

Once again the United Nations was brought to Seaholm by way of BUNA. In early May, the gym was transformed into a room appropriate for the widespread general assembly. For a day and a half, students entering the gym felt like they were just stepping in off the streets of New York City. Delegates bickered among themselves while the various blocks tried to get their issues passed. Trying to keep the chaos somewhat orderly was Birmingham United Nations Association Secretary-General, Steve Johnston, and President, Jon Taylor.

There were five topics of discussion. They included the international economic situation, nuclear aid, population control, the food situation, and drug abuse and control. The major fund raising project which benefitted the general assembly was the Phoenix Concert, staged in January.

Five girls add color to grid half times

Cheerleaders and fans yell for Maple teams, urging them on to victory. And due credit must also be given to a group of five girls who use their talents for twirling batons to add color and spirit when the band plays to spark Seaholm athletes on to a win. Under co-captains Shawn Murphy and Ellen Vesey, the other three majorettes—Charlotte Sommers, Connie Noftz and Sherry Engelhardt—have practiced hard to perform at their best.

The majorettes have kept busy. Combining with drum major Jordan McCormack, they have led the band at football games and parades; they have twirled fire; they have provided inspiration and entertainment at school pep rallies. They have done a great job helping to bring out spirit and supporting the teams.

150 member band marches on

The Seaholm marching band has grown considerably over the years. This year the 150 member band, under drum major Jordan McCormack, is the largest ever to perform at Seaholm. They participated in five halftime shows at football games, played during pep assemblies and marched in two parades—the local Halloween parade and the May Michigan Week parade.

Much time and effort is spent in learning a halftime show. The band practices daily perfecting marching drills, formations and music for the Friday night games. The band was directed by Mr. Kutscher with help from concert band director, Mr. Hillman, and student teacher, Mr. Boyce.

This was the first season for the band to wear and proudly display their new, sharp-looking uniforms.

Band divides into groups

At the close of the football season the 150 member Seaholm Marching Band divided into two smaller groups, the Symphony Band and the Concert Band. Both bands practice daily, working hard to perform well at concerts and other musical activities.

The Concert Band performed three concerts during the school year. It was made up mostly of sophomores, and was conducted by Mr. Hillman, a recent addition to the music staff. The main purpose of this band was to prepare its members for the Symphony Band.

Students perform

The Symphony Band was directed by Mr. Kutscher and consisted of the more experienced students. Members of this band not only performed in three concerts, but at many other musical activities.

Individual members participated in the two Solo and Ensemble Festivals with outstanding results. Of the 38 members participating, 31 earned First Division Ratings. The band as a whole was also awarded a I Rating at the District Band Festival in March.

Some of the top members from this band along with a few members of the orchestra combined to form the "pit orchestra" for Seaholm's musical, Oklahoma! Other interested members of the Symphony Band formed a Jazz Band. Among other things, they played for the National Honor Society induction ceremony in May. Besides all of these activities some of the band students still managed to gain enough interest for a Pep Band at some of the home basketball games. As in the past, the sophomores and juniors from the Symphony Band along with the finer musicians from the Concert Band played at the commencement ceremonies ending the 1975 school year.

1. The 1975 Seaholm Symphony Band was the finest in years. 2. The young percussion section has much potential for next year. 3. Tim Ewald, a sophomore bassoon player performs well during rehearsal. 4. Pep band drummer, Tom Toulmin, plays at a home basketball game. 5. Two other members of the pep band are cornet players, Dave Camel and Dave Armstrong. 6. Top band seniors, Marnie Toulmin and Jay Shuler, practice hard. 7. Orchestra emits sweet sounds Sweet sounds that couldn't possibly belong to a band come out of A4 each noon hour as the Seaholm orchestra rehearses. This year's group is the biggest and best orchestra the school has ever had according to director Mr. Hickman. Long hours of practice have paid off in three successful concerts and many honors for individual players in the festivals. The December concert was highlighted by the full orchestra (that's winds included) playing Haydn's Symphony No. 7 in C major.

This year's group has shown much patience, co-operation and talent.

1. Directing Haydn's Symphony No. 5 is Mr. Hickman with concert mistress Ingrid Liepins and violas Barb Zmich and Meg Everson playing along enthusiastically. 2. Concert mistress Ingrid Liepins keeps the first violin section as well as the whole orchestra together; Meg Auld and Mary Jones play with her. 3. Harmonizing beautifully on their violins are Brad French, Dave Angell and Mary Louise Wiack. 4. Cellists Judy Johnson and Matt Schiebold work on a festival piece while first viola Barb Zmich waits for her part to begin. 5. Orchestra pianist Shari Streit concentrates on playing while at the same time watching the conductor. 6. A new and welcome addition to the Seaholm orchestra is bass player John Kennedy.

Chorale works for festival

Chorale's highpoint of the year was receiving all I's at the choir festival held at Lahser. This is a big event for the group and the members work towards the festival most of the year.

Class time is spent on warming up and acquiring good tone quality. Even though the group is advanced, they do work on the essentials of good posture and correct breathing. Chorale spends time trying a variety of works ranging from Renaissance melodies and show pieces to spirituals.

Taken from the larger choir is a select ensemble which performs for luncheons and community events. Ensemble received a very high rating at the State Festival. Many individuals in the choir perform individually or in small groups at recitals, churches and even nightclubs.

Chorus learns basics

This year Chorus accomplished its main goal of learning basic skills. Next year most of this group will advance to the Maple Chorale. Chorus gave two concerts and did very well at all two of them.

Mr. Branstrom worked with the group, composed mainly of sophomores and less experienced upper-classmen. Much of the class period time was spent on perfecting timing, sightreading and working for the Festival. At the Festival the group received a rating of II, which is very good.

Foreign exchange students gain knowledge in U.S.

Going to a foreign country is a great experience for anyone. It must be the same for foreigners who come to the United States to visit or study. For the three foreign students who attended Seaholm this year, the experience involved a new language, new customs and meeting many new people.

The foreigners were not all seniors this year. Pablo Guerrero was listed as a junior. Pablo arrived from Ecuador last fall and although he had taken English before coming to the U.S., he was quite unfamiliar with the "new" language. His familiarity improved as the year went on and he became more at ease in his classes which included biology and chemistry. Pablo hopes to enter a university upon returning home and study medicine.

Some of the things Pablo is interested in are basketball, soccer and horseback riding. He participated in BUNA while at Seaholm. His American brother was Bob Carroll.

Kristiina Ernvall, from Finland, was nervous when she first came to Seaholm for she had never been overseas. Seaholm's largeness was a handicap she shortly overcame, joining in with Field Day, BUNA and the Foreign Exchange club. She was impressed with the size of cars in the U.S.; in Finland the cars were much smaller and used less frequently. The food was similar in both countries but table manners differed greatly. She stayed with Bonnie Rutter.

A third student, Runi Holter, from Norway, stayed with Lisa Landers while going to Seaholm. Late in the fall Runi transferred to another school.

Students venture away for season

Each summer many Seaholmites take advantage of opportunities to travel abroad. Some go independently; others in study groups; and quite a few go through the auspices of the foreign student exchange programs, the American Field Service and the Youth for Understanding. By utilizing these groups, the students get a better understanding of the countries they visit for they get to live with a family for a period of weeks.

Nine Seaholmites went to such countries as Japan, Morrocco and Germany last summer. Those going went through an evaluation procedure before being placed with a host family in the country of their preference.

Club offers various activities

Seaholm's foreign exchange club was active in 1974-75. Shaun Costello served as president of the group that consisted of students who had gone abroad the previous summer, people interested in going overseas, the foreign exchange students and others who just were interested in the group. Monthly meetings were held at students' homes where foreign food was served and the students told of their various experiences while abroad.

The club sponsored a parent information night for those students who were planning to go abroad and their parents. The group also held two successful pancake dinners to raise money so that partial scholarships could be provided to Seaholmites going overseas. The students winning these scholarships were Micky Swart and Cathy Smith.

Produce comedy play

For weeks cast and crew worked diligently building sets, rehearsing lines and making costumes to ensure the success of the fall play, "Charley's Aunt." Under the direction of Mrs. Bigelow, the production was a big hit.

The story revolves around two young bachelors Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham (played by Bill Stokel and Fred Corey), who meet two eligible ladies Amy Spettigue and Kitty Verdun (Molly Moons and Donna Watton) and invite them to lunch. The trouble starts when Charley's out-of-town aunt, Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez, can't come to town and chaperone the lunch. Desperate, the boys dress up Charley's neighbor, Lord Fancourt Babberly (played by Rush Pearson) as Charley's aunt. The boys go on a merry chase, trying to cover up their farce from the girls and Amy's uncle, Stephen Spettigue and Jack's father, Sir Francis (Dave Crites and Dan Doctoroff). In the end, Charley's real aunt (Laura Innes) comes to town, bringing her namesake Ela Delahay (Karolyn Wallace). The boys confess and the truth is exposed but everything turns out happily anyway.

The play ran four consecutive nights, December 4-7 and was enjoyed by all, young and old alike.

Stage crews merit praise

Without hundreds of hours of behind-the-scenes work, it would be impossible to produce a full scale musical the size of Oklahoma!. Approximately a hundred students participated on various committees, some doubling up by working on two or more crews or by working on a crew and performing as an understudy or member of a dance or singing group. The work performed caused Mr. Taylor to comment that this year's backstage crews were the best he'd ever had.

Diane Feldman as student director and Brad Perkins as director of stage and set coordinated the work of the crews. Crew heads Kathy Dilworth, Becky Miles, Lisa Dolik, Ann Byerlein, Tami Roth and Debbie Peters led their respective workers in accomplishing their missions.

What really goes on as work progresses? As an example, take the program committee headed by Debbie Peters. First comes the planning: result, 32 pages plus cover with 4-color pictures costing over $2000 to produce. Then comes the financing. After the cost is underwritten comes the picture taking, the copy writing, the physical production of the pages ready for the printer. Conservatively fifty people have a hand in the preparation of the program with perhaps a thousand hours of labor donated.

Truly, without the hundreds of hours of behind-the-scenes work, it would be impossible to produce any musical.

Spring musical features many

Oklahoma is a long way from Michigan but Seaholm's actors and musicians brought "it" a lot closer with the production of Rogers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma! After three months of hard work, this musical extravaganza was performed under the direction of Mr. Taylor in Wagner Auditorium, April 23-26.

Seniors Liz Lachman and Steve Johnston played the lead parts of Laurey and Curly. Laurey's Aunt Eller was played by Pauline Obey. Other leads were given to Bob McIntyre as Jud; John Parker as Will; Laura Innes as Ado Annie; Leslie Paige as Gertie; and Rush Pearson as Ali Hakim.

Including the various dance and singing choruses, Seaholm's Oklahoma! had a cast of about 75 students.

Musical takes precious time

Oklahoma! is synonymous with a great deal of work for those who are involved in it. Not only the stars but the singers and dancers made sacrifices for the musical—lost sleep, lower grades, frayed nerves. But the rewards were great in new friends, teamwork and fun obtained.

Seaholmites receive honors

There are two major honorary societies at Seaholm. The largest and best known of the two is National Honor Society and the other is Quill and Scroll, a honor group for journalism students. Last May forty-four of Seaholm's present seniors were inducted into NHS at an evening ceremony that was followed by a reception in the Maple Room.

In order to be considered for this honor a student must be a junior with a 3.2 grade average or a senior with a 3.0 average. Scholastic ability, though, is by no means the only qualification considered when applicants are reviewed. Decisive factors in the final decisions are character, leadership, citizenship, and service. The two major activities provided by this organization, which is sponsored by Mr. Thumser and Mrs. Swart, are the induction service and the tutoring program.

Quill and Scroll, a national journalistic society, consists of senior students who have excelled in one of the three journalistic programs offered at Seaholm. Those who were recipients of the honor this year were Kim Peschel, Lisa Drury, Beth Puls, Rita Liepins, Margo Savoie, Marty Brown, and Marnie Toulmin from the Piper. Highlander staff are Cindy McMaken and Barb Zmich also were awarded membership as was Bruce McElhenny, editor of the Bagpipe.

Originality unifies '75 Piper

The 1975 Piper is unique. The '75 Piper is larger (324 pages) and more colorful (32 pages of full 4-color process). Senior pictures are printed in color for the first time at Seaholm (and possibly the first time for the Bill Williams Studio and Modern Yearbook Co.) Junior and sophomore pictures are also individual this year, a departure from past practice of homeroom photos.

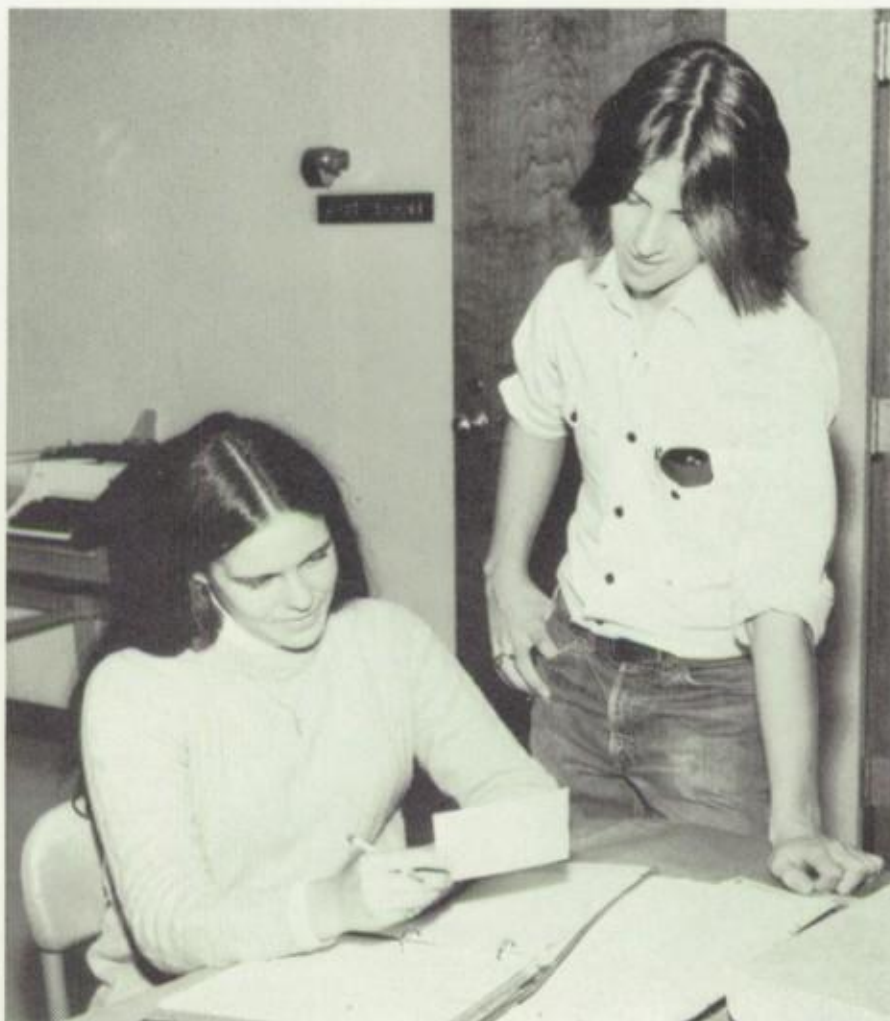

A red cover featuring photographic scenes appears on the '75 Piper. A mosaic layout style is used throughout the book, featuring a dominant picture with the other photos and copy grouped around it. Each page has copy and captions to further explain the pictures.

4-color, extra pages in Piper

Four additional pages and the entire senior section done in four color process pictures were innovations of the 1975 Piper. A lot of work—hundreds of class hours, after school labor and even some Saturday sessions—was needed to finish the 324 page book. Under the direction of editor Lisa Drury, the section editors, writers and photographers put together a book of which all could be proud.

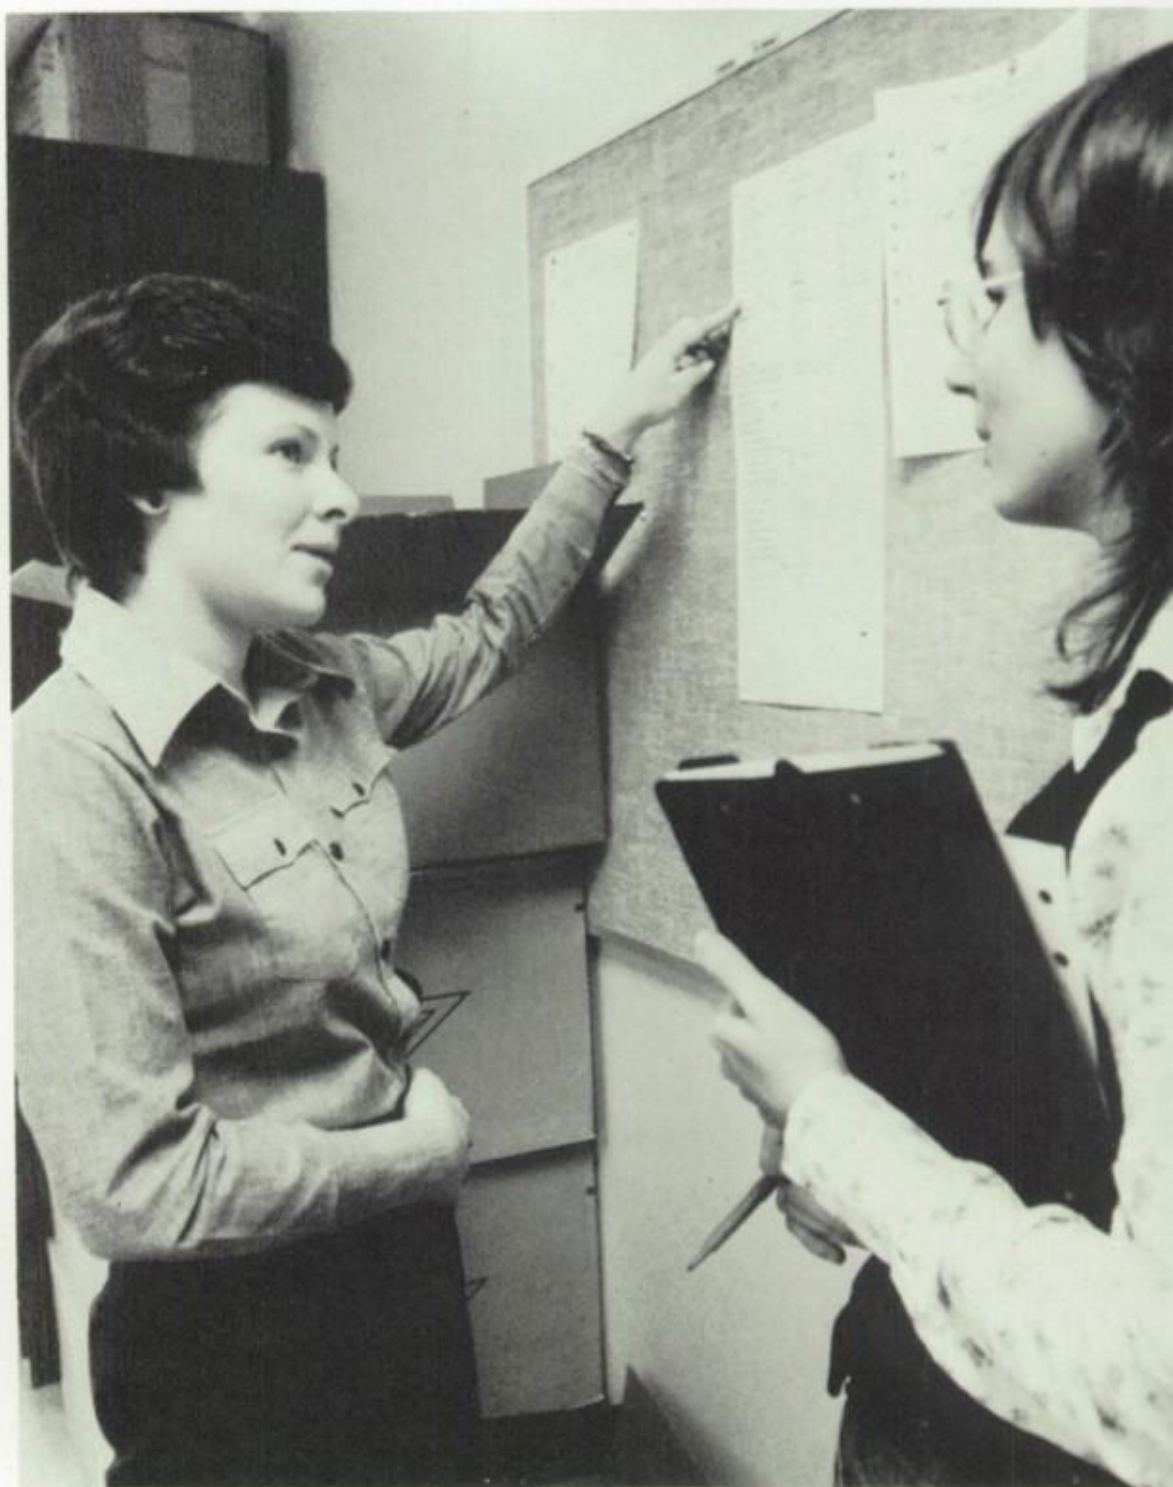

No one person is indispensable, yet everyone is needed from the editor down to the individual salesperson. Seniors who labored long hours include Marty Brown, head photographer; Rita Liepins, advertising manager; Kim Peschel, activities editor; Beth Puls, sports editor; Margo Savoie, academics editor; Marcia Plier, senior editor and Marnie Toulmin, community editor. About thirty other juniors and sophomores made up the official staff with countless students volunteering their labors from time to time.

SHS Highlander comes out weekly

Seaholm's school newspaper, The Highlander, resumed weekly publication this year. The paper was edited by senior Barbara Zmich assisted by Bruce McElhinney, Cindy McMaken and Jodi Dimick. Advertising manager was Kathy Kozak.

Since The Bagpipe carried all of the sports news of Seaholm, a decision was made to exclude that type of news from the pages of The Highlander and as a result the paper carried more school news and features, more pictures, and more and varied editorial comment. Columns from class presidents, the student government head and the editor graced the editorial page. Art work from art and cartooning classes was used frequently... opinions from student letter writers and guest editorialists were printed often.

An aggressive circulation campaign was carried to the parents and the mail subscriptions increased as parents took advantage of the opportunity to buy the paper that let them be in the know about the happenings at Seaholm.

Experiment with paper

A noble experiment that didn't live up to its expectations—that was The Bagpipe, a new weekly sports paper produced by the journalism department under the editorship of Bruce McElhinney. Editorially, the paper provided the sports enthusiast news of all the school athletic teams but it never found its readers as circulation never went above 300 and advertisers also stayed away. So after the fall and winter sports seasons, the paper died.

The notion still persists that Seaholm athletes deserve a medium to publicize their efforts since neither the local weekly or daily papers do the job.

Debateurs win trophy

Seaholm's three debate teams proved to be quite successful under new coach Mrs. Freeman. Highlighting their year was the winning of the Wayne-Oakland League sweepstakes trophy over the other eleven members. Independently, the novice team took first and the junior varsity, second. Top speaker awards were given to Avery Katz and Kim Peschel.

The membership of the three squads consisted of Andi Fischer, Steve Bottum, Dave Walters and Jeff Ewald, varsity; Kim Peschel, Kristen Westman, Bob Starkman and Greg Yu, junior varsity; and Ken Bosley, Dave Camel, Jim Walbridge, Laura Brownlee and Laurie Pilling, novice.

Skiing entices students

No matter whether it was 30 degrees or 10 below zero, the Seaholm Ski Club could be found skiing the slopes of Alpine Valley almost every Wednesday during the season. Blessed with excellent skiing weather week after week, this year's large club took full advantage of their opportunities to enjoy their sport. The '75 club was under the direction of Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Tincu and Mr. Ritter; it included three classes of skiers—the beginners, the intermediate and the expert.

In mid-January, Mr. Ritter took a group of about twenty to Boyne for a weekend of fun and sport. Although this was a long anticipated affair, the highlight of the Maples' season was a trip to Big Sky, Montana, over the Easter holiday. Forty students accompanied Mr. Wheeler on this once-in-a-lifetime trip. Whether flying over the moguls or hot-dogging it down the steep slopes, ski club members always had an enjoyable time, wherever they went.

SHS clubs organize

The number of Seaholm clubs was small this year but members in them were enthusiastic and strong willed. There were six such groups catering to varied interests.

The bowling group met each Monday under the sponsorship of Mrs. Fleming. Running scores were kept both for teams and individuals so that trophies and awards could be made. Ping pong enthusiasts had Mr. Behrendt as adviser. They met at members' homes to practice and represented the school in several meets. The third sports related club was the bicycling group sponsored by Mr. O'Donnell.

One of the older clubs that consistently draws support from the student body is the prayer and bible study group. Meeting with Mr. Bedor early each morning, the group shares prayer and bible readings.

The ushering club was reorganized this year under the direction of Mrs. Schlain and provided student guides for Open House, Field Day, College Night and ushers for school plays and commencement.

Last, but not least, the French club consisted of students interested in learning more about French culture. Sponsored by Miss Chesney the group spent many enjoyable evenings sampling French cuisine in area restaurants.

Cheerleaders try camp

The three squads of cheerleaders for 1974-1975 attended the USCA Camps All-America during July in order to learn new ideas for cheerleading. The camp session lasted for four days with competition each evening. The Varsity squad won two ribbons

A new innovation this year was that of Yell Leaders. Try-Outs were held and Rob Distler Joe Georger, Randy Moorhead, and Mark Pendray were the regulars with Tom Crady and Damian Zikakis serving as alternates.

New ideas affect cheering

Many new ideas were added to the cheerleading squads this year. One was Mrs. Ellen Fleming, the new adviser-coach. Mrs. Fleming took over for Mrs. Betty Kinnison who retired 2 years ago. Mrs. Fleming braved the elements many times to attend the Varsity Football games and keep a watchful eye on the girls.

Cheerleaders included: Varsity, Captain Beth Boynton, Co-Captains Lisa Drury and Laurie Kale, Diane Boyd, Sally Chamberlain, Sharon Price, and Beth Puls. JVI, Captain Spring Wilson, Co-Captain Dawn Goodes, Karen Johnson, Sue McCready, Mickey Swart, and Lynn Winders. Gridders prepare early

Seaholm's 1974 football season started in late August as most of the prospective team members attended a week long football camp. It ended the second week of November after the 6-0 triumph over arch rival Groves.

Hopes were high for a successful season and the will to win came through in the season's opener against Southfield-Lathrup as the Maples nosed out the Chargers 8-6. The following three games were disastrous though as the Maples couldn't score a single point. Then the Seaholm squad conquered Berkley, 27-14 for their initial SMA victory. Losing to Hazel Park, the eventual SMA champion, didn't shatter the team for the boys came back to win the final three contests for a winning 5 and 4 season.

In that final stretch, Dondero gave the Maples the most trouble but the Maples were saved by a clipping penalty which cost the Oaks greatly. As usual, Seaholm beat crosstown rival Groves although they worried the fans a little by not scoring until the third quarter.

Footballers receive honors

The 1974 football team, coached by Mr. Rankin and led by co-captains Harry Limauro and Bob MacIntyre, received fifteen individual awards while racking up a commendable season.

Four members of the team made the All-SMA football squad. Besides the co-captains, Greg Probst and Mike McFadden received this honor. Probst also made the All-Area team. Seven other Maples received SMA honorable mentions: Steve Keyes, Tim Bradley, Jaff Auchterlonie, Doug Manley, Jon Bach, Dan Bulone and Tom Sundquist.

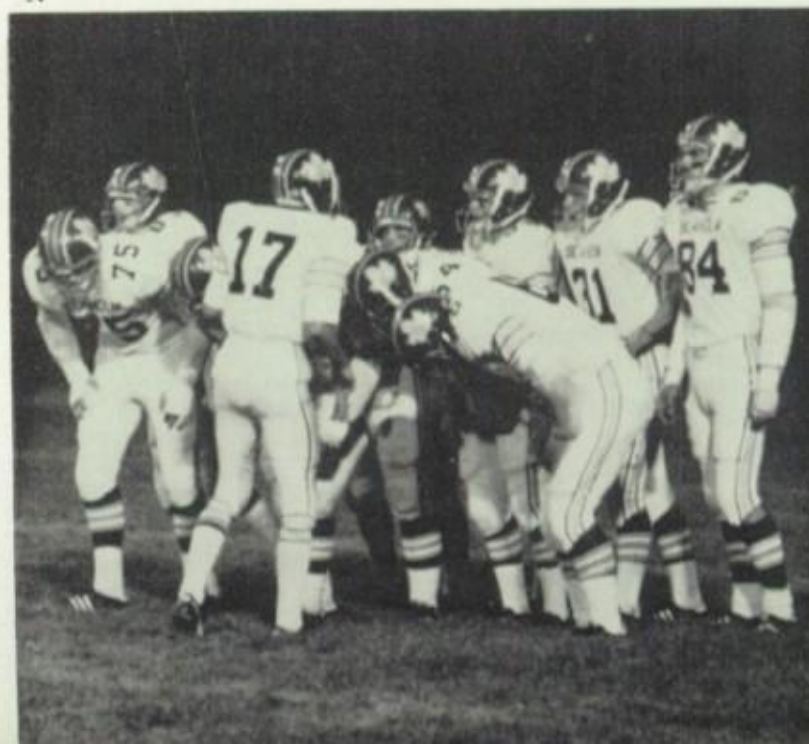

Craig Frye was awarded the Vince Lombardi Award and Jaff Auchterlonie earned the John D. Anderson Memorial Award.

One member of the team, though not a player, deserves some acknowledgement and recognition. Don Cameron, serving as manager for three years, has put forth a lot of time and effort into the job. Assistant coaches Steve Melancon, Dale Hansen and Don Smith helped tremendously with the team.

MAPLES

Maple JV's share title

The JV football team had an excellent season. Led by sophomores Gale White, Mark Leetsma, Mike Limauro and Bruce Anderson on offense and Dave Reyes, Greg Richmond and Don McGehee on defense, the team turned out a 6-2 record, good enough to share the SMA title. Richmond and McGehee were named the outstanding linemen while White got the outstanding back award.

Closing the season with the game against the Ferndale Eagles, the junior Maples needed to win to have the SMA title all to themselves. But it wasn't to be. Fate changed its course and the final result was a 14-22 loss and Seaholm had to share the title with Kimball, a team they had previously beaten.

Harriers wrap up good year

The Seaholm Harriers ended this year's season with a team record of 2-4. Sophomore star Kai Clarke was a welcome surprise to the team as he took the number one runner position. Seniors Stu Grovert, captain, and Kurt Wildemann consistently fought for the number two spot on the squad. Varsity runners John Cruitt, Steve Phillips, Steve Lucas and Jim Bronson contributed greatly to this year's team standing.

The Harriers placed well individually in the league meet with Kai Clarke leading the Maple finishers by placing 13th. Four lettermen will return for the 1975 season.

Seaholm coach is former star

Soccer proved to be the most exciting fall sport for Seaholmites to watch this year. Hundreds of fans watched and cheered the team on to a second place league finish. But the season didn't end with the Stompers in second place — in the state tournament, SHS went all the way to bring home the Michigan title and the right to participate in the nationals in the spring.

Quite a bit of the credit for the team's success goes to new coach Mike Mislinay, a Seaholm grad who still holds the soccer single season scoring record from his student days. His talent helped the Maples then, as now, although in a different way. Coach Mislinay gave much time, spirit, and encouragement to the guys on the team. They couldn't help but win for him and the school.

Joe Georger is pleased with his team as the Stompers score another goal against Lahser. 5. Pushing hard to beat cross town rival Groves is Bruce McElhinney. 6. Advancing the ball towards the goal with a nice smooth kick is Chuck Havens. 7. Doug Manning receives a clear pathway which enables him to set up for the goal.

SHS squad wins state tournament

The '75 soccer team brought much fame to Seaholm. Besides placing second in the North Suburban Soccer League, they went all the way and won the Michigan Junior Soccer Cup, giving them the chance to represent Michigan in the spring national tournament.

On their way to the state cup, the Stompers had to outplay, first of all, cross town rival, Groves. It proved to be an exciting match. When time ran out the score was deadlocked, 1-1. But someone had to win to advance so a 30 minute overtime was played. At the end of that time the score was still tied so penalty shots had to be taken. With the excellent saves of Bob Joyce, Seaholm captured the game.

Next the Maples beat a team from St. Joe's, 3-1. The state finals was against Lahser. Lahser came on strong in the first half, but Seaholm's defense kept the game scoreless. With only six minutes left, co-captain Don Delong pushed through the Lahser defense, passed to Tom Stelter on the left who made a nice smooth kick into the net.

Racqueteers fight for SMA title

Seaholm's girls' tennis team provided much excitement and a winning season for spectators. For the second year in a row, the Maplettes were SMA champs although they had to share the title this year with Kimball.

The first four singles gave great strength to the team and all four of the girls will be back next year. Number one singles belongs to Jenny Brielmaier while Heather Campbell holds a strong second. Two sophomores hold third and fourth positions: Wendy Derderian and Heidi Bramson.

Seniors held down the doubles with Pam Owens and Jodie Wisniewski first and Beth Jordan and Cathy Frye second. Junior Carol Wheeler and sophomore Lisa Reed were tremendous assets to the team as were Polly Leonard and Linda Brown. Coach Stiles was assisted by manager Mary Kenyon.

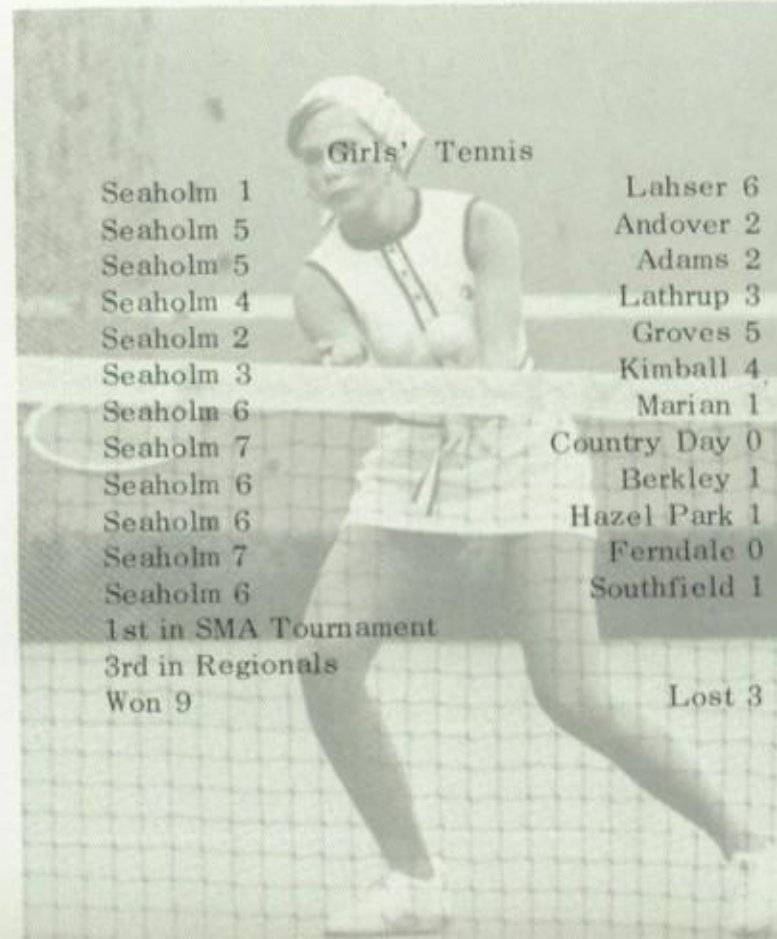

1. Pam Owens, a member of the first doubles, puts great strength behind the racket. 2. In perfect and smooth form, Jodi Wisniewski gracefully hits the ball. 3. Ready to meet the ball in any situation and always coming on strong is Jenny Brielmaier. 4. Heather Campbell serves with such concentration and determination that the ball can't help but be a sure ace. 5. Aiming straight ahead with a good hard swing is Cathy Frye. 6. Beth Jordan follows through by meeting the ball head on.

Female tankers win SMA title easily

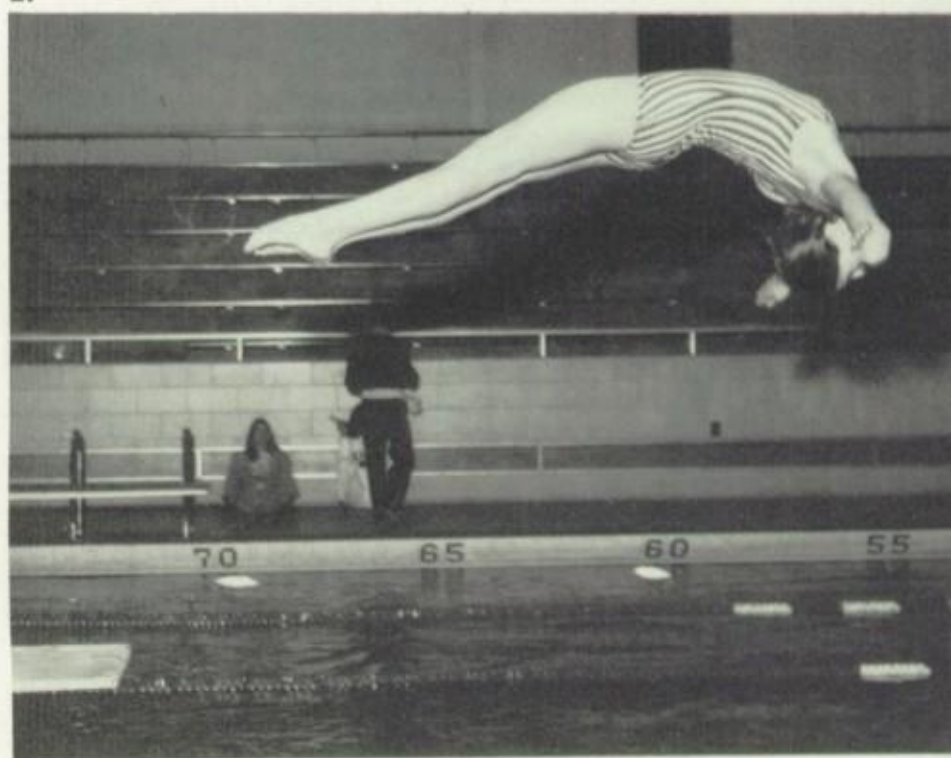

Despite a mediocre dual meet season, the Seaholm tankerettes did it again. For the sixth consecutive year, they took the SMA championships keeping Coach Watson's record intact.

The girls were led by senior captains Peggy Kristen and Dodie Hagerman. Throughout the year Seaholm swimmers consistently placed high demonstrating the great depth that the squad had.

The season's dual meet record was a disappointing 4-6; a little more effort in the Dearborn and Andover meets could have reversed that record.

Spirit lacks not as quintet loses

Spirit displayed by the Seaholm girl cagers never wavered although the 2-10 won-loss record didn't provide much recognition for the effort the girls put forth. Most of the games were close with three of them decided by two points or less. Typical of the latter was the one point loss to cross town rival Groves.

Guard Hilary Carlson was the top scorer on the squad. Her top game was the Southfield contest when she scored thirteen points. For three years Hilary has dribbled for the varsity along with twins Beth and Sue Puls. Other seniors who are graduating from the team are Patti Nelson, Mimi Page and Susie Whitehead.

Everyone on the team worked hard but four should be singled out for commendation. Hilary Carlson and Sue Puls served as co-captains, keeping the team organized and teaching the underclassmen new skills. Roberta Thorton kept score at every game, sometimes served as the official, and acted as the cagers' manager. Mrs. Owen was the girls' coach.

JV cagers edge victim for wins

Seaholm's junior varsity basketball girls edged by Groves and Ferndale by a total of five points to record their only two wins of the '74-'75 season. And if they could have scored just a few more points at the right time, they could have picked up two more wins as they lost two heartbreakers by one and two point margins.

Two of the Maplettes showed outstanding effort in every game. Julie Hopson and Jean Defebaugh displayed offensive ability — in the Groves contest Julie made 16 points. Other girls used the year to polish their knowledge and skills so that they could be of help to the varsity next year.

Kathy Lamet served as captain of the JV squad this year and the girls were coached by student teacher Miss Frid.

Players receive honors as regular year ends

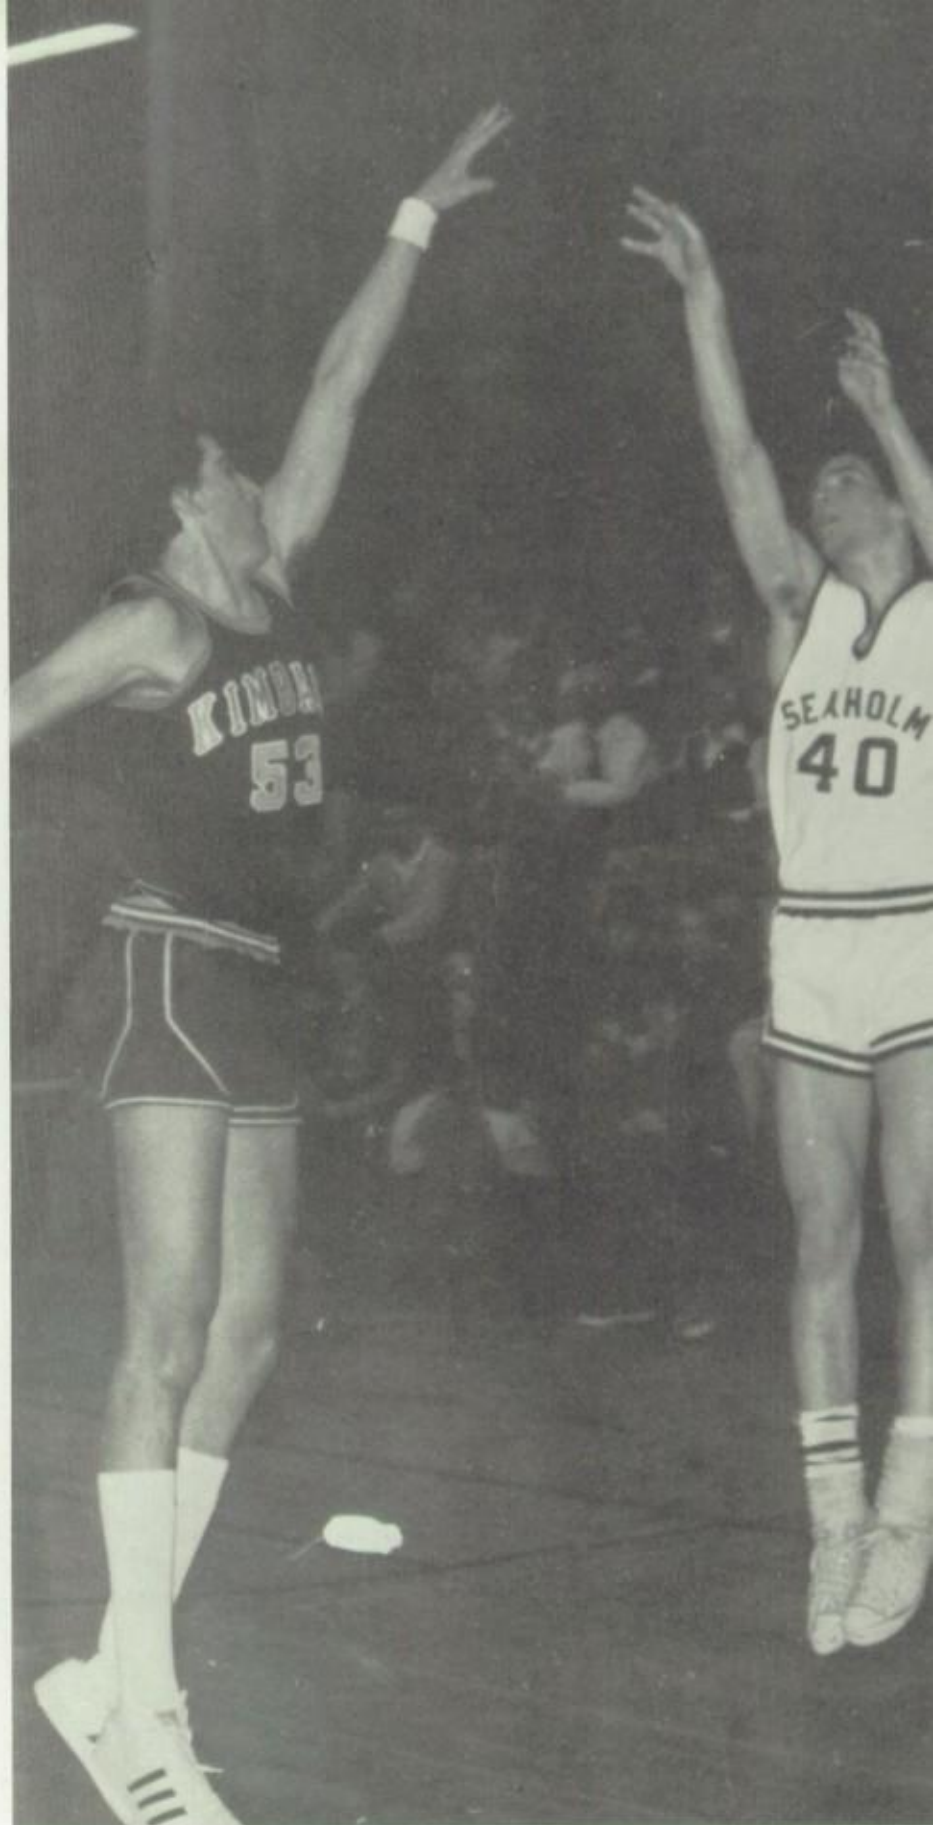

Many Maples earned post season awards for their playing ability. Perhaps the outstanding Seaholm basketball player was Dave Bean who had an impressive record as a junior. Dave averaged 14-6 points per game and hauled in six rebounds per contest. Leaguewise, Dave made the All SMA team. He went even further to make the 2nd team All Area. Dave still has another year to be an asset to Seaholm.

Senior members of the cage team who received honors included Bob Denning (11 points and 7 rebounds per game) and co-captain Steve Jeske. Denning received two honorable mentions, SMA and All Area while Jeske received just the SMA award. The other co-captain, Chris Fremuth, and Jim Petersen and Tom Foell worked hard, contributing much to the success of the team.

Returning lettermen for next year will include Dave and Dan Bean, Doug Everard, Billy Brooks, Chris Smith, Jim Fox, Dave Hammond, George Topous and Mike Murphy will give the Maples an experienced and hard working squad.

Maples excite crowd

Seaholm's '74-'75 basketball season proved to be both exciting and disappointing. Lack of a big man kept the Maples from running up a winning streak as the cagers struggled around the .500 mark all season until near the end. Highpoint of the year came with a second place finish in the Christmas Tournament held at Walled Lake Western.

The season started right with a victory over arch rival Groves, 66-63. And if the Maples could have made two more buckets later in December when they played the Falcons a second time for the tournament crown, they could have beaten them again. As it was, they lost to Groves 65-63.

In the SMA Seaholm was beaten twice by Berkley and Kimball and split with Ferndale, Southfield and Hazel Park. In only one game, the first against Berkley, were the Maples out of it as they lost by 30.

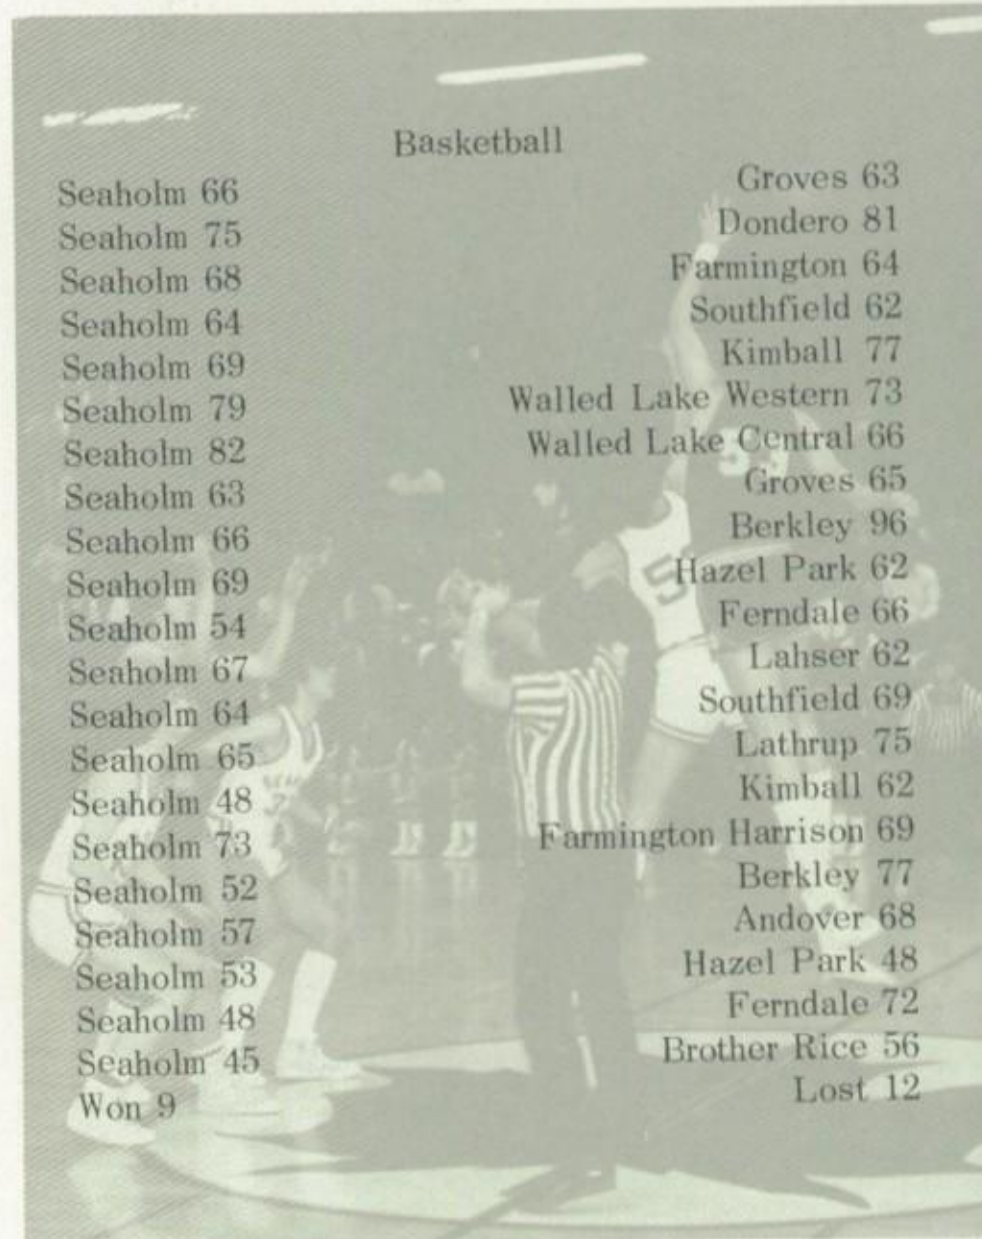

Post season tournament play ended quickly for the Maples as they drew defending state champion Brother Rice in the first round. The Maples fought well, though, before bowing in a 56-45 loss.

Junior varsity quintet suffers dismal year

The junior varsity basketball team suffered through a dismal season this year. Under Coach Tom Lannon, the JV cagers compiled a 2-15 record. Even though the team finished with a poor record, the guys really improved as the year went on. Lack of height and inconsistent shooting led to the cagers' downfall.

The JV team was led by John Beck who came off the bench in the early part of the season to lead the team in scoring. Helping him in that department and on the boards were Mike Jeske, Rich Stone, Gale White and Bob Meach. Bringing the ball up the court fell into the hands of Jay Spenchian and Jon Tettenborn.

Seaholm team plays well throughout year

Seaholm's volleyball team played well in the 1975 season but did not win many games, let alone matches. The ball just didn't bounce right for the Maplettes who were coached by Mrs. Owen and assisted by student teacher Miss Stange.

Practice was at 6:30 a.m. four days a week. During these practices all of the girls drilled on such skills as bumping, spiking, setting and saving.

The varsity was made up of ten girls, two seniors and the rest juniors. Next year's team will have the benefit of experienced players. The captains were Betsy Kerr.

The JV squad was made up of fifteen girls with many new sophomore faces. It was captained by Patty Hagen and Lindsay Costello.

Win relays, league

Seaholm Seamen began their season on a promising note by taking first place in the Kimball Relays. This gave Coach Heick his fourth win in this annual event. But after this initial victory, the team slumped losing twice before regaining its winning ways.

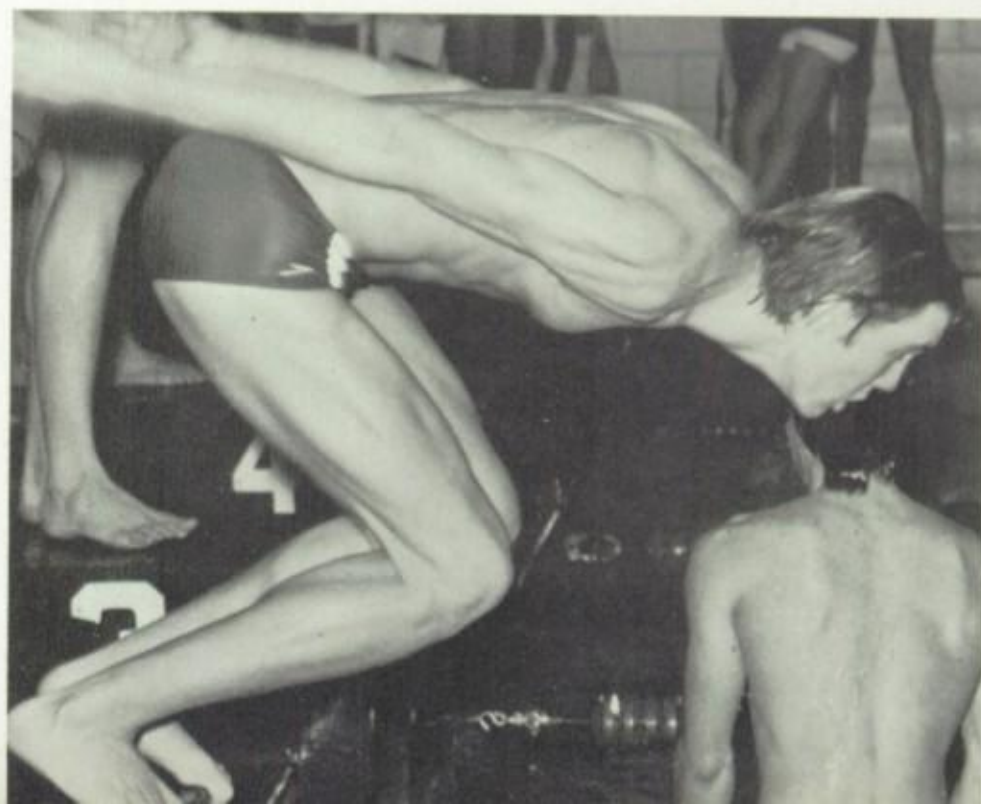

SHS convincingly won the SMA again for the tenth time. In all of the league dual meets, Seaholm scored over one hundred points and in the Kimball meet the Maples won every event.

The Maples lost to arch rival Groves who went on to win the state swimming crown. Seaholm finished in the top ten of the state to give Birmingham solid representation in this swim classic.

Female diver asset to team

The 1975 swim team featured a new member who was an excellent asset to the team. But the Maples have had many fine swimmers over the years so what made this new member so noteworthy. It was because she was a girl—Lori Wettlaufer. Lori was the Maples' leading diver who consistently won her speciality. She placed first in the SMA, first in the Detroit News invitational and would have placed high in the state finals except that she was unable to compete.

Outstanding swimmers for the team this year were Steve Kratt and Ed Leach, who both placed in the state meet. Leach got a fourth in the 100 backstroke while Kratt got sixth in the 200 Individual Medley.

Juniors Rob Distler, Joel Moore and Jim Berg displayed great potential as did some promising sophomores: Bob Holcomb, Pete Doane and Jeff Link.

Wrestlers win big

Three coaches in three years does not do much to build a winning team. But the Seaholm wrestlers overcame this handicap to post a successful year — a 6-6 dual meet record, a second place SMA finish, and the winning of the Birmingham-Bloomfield tournament.

Wrestling is essentially an individual sport. When the wrestler goes out on the mat, he is all alone. For six minutes he is in continuous action, pitted against another boy of equal size. Winning or losing is by one's own efforts.

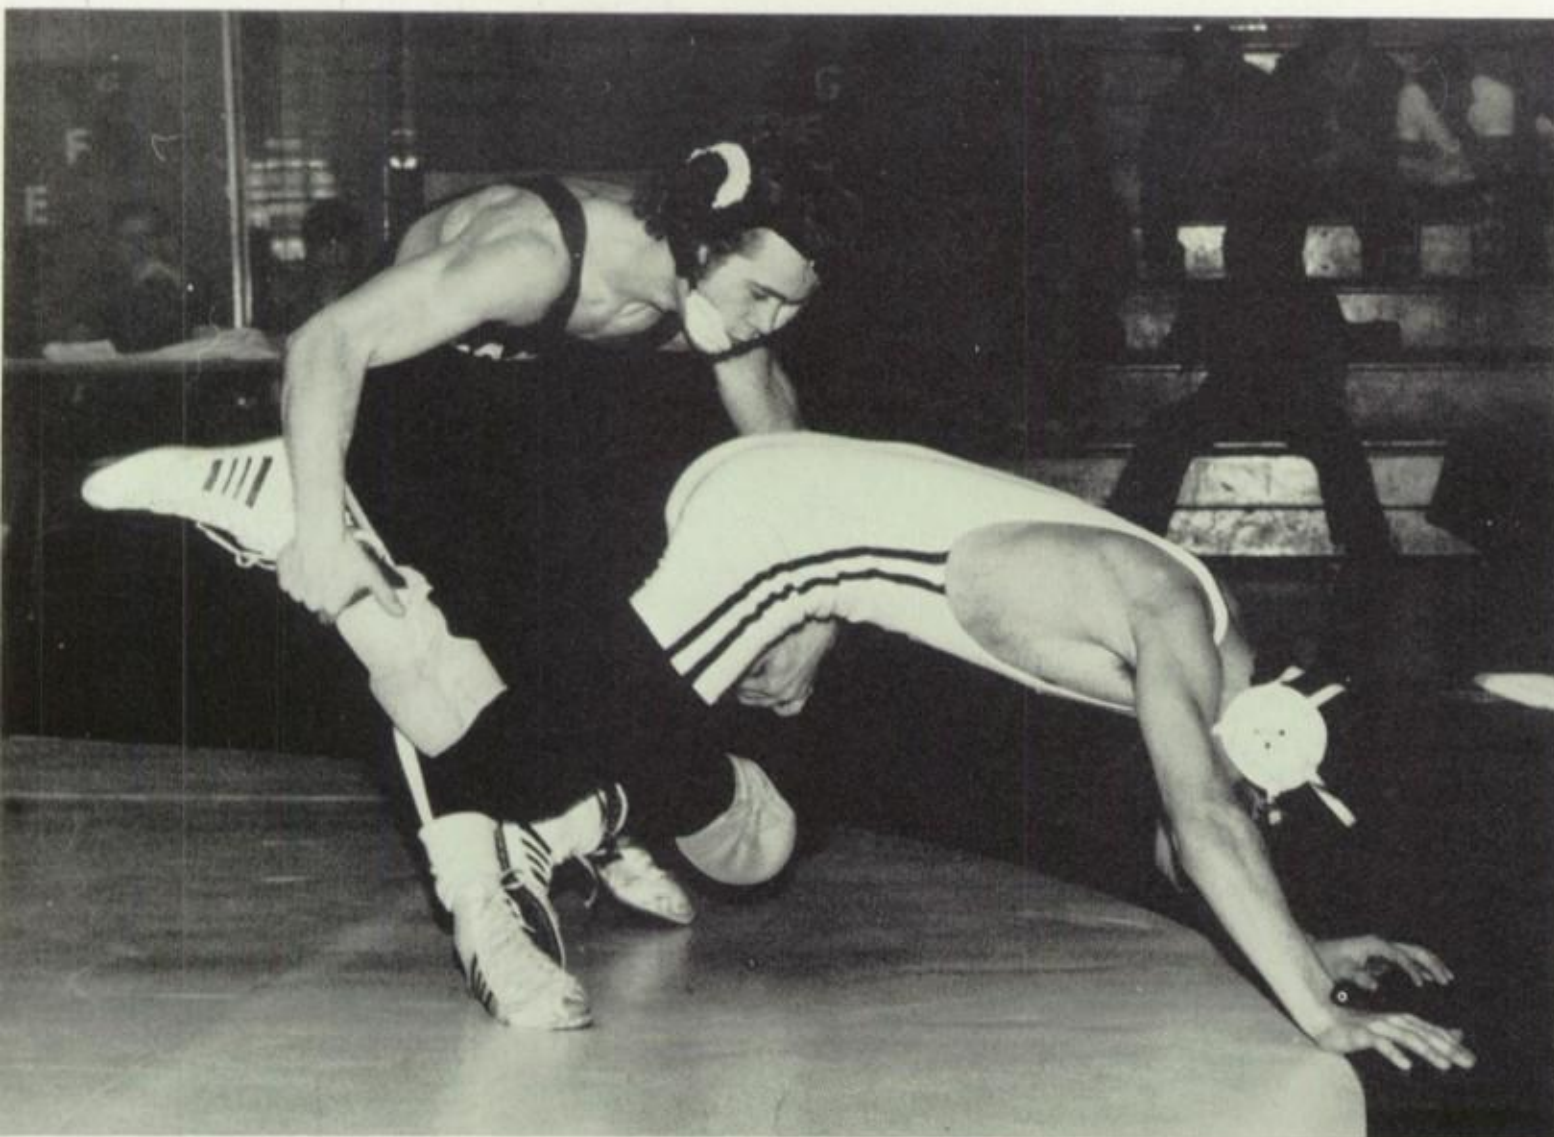

Seaholm was handicapped somewhat by the small turnout for this sport. Because of the lack of wrestlers in some weight classes, a JV team could not be fielded. Eight sophomores and four juniors will return next year.

1. Trying to maintain his position, Rob Morrill goes in for a pin. 2. Wrestling in the heavyweight division, Bob MacIntyre gets the takedown. 3. Senior Ed Myers struggles to keep his man on the mat. 4. Mike Pulling tightens his hold as he goes in with a pinning combination.

Seniors lead

Seaholm's wrestling team had six seniors on its roster this past year and that, perhaps, was the reason the matmen enjoyed as much success as they did. People like Dennis Grieve, Rob Morrill, Dave Leigh and Ed Myers, all three year veterans, led the squad.

Grieve was the best grappler. Not only did he finish first in the Birmingham-Bloomfield tourney, he was SMA champ in the 138 pound class, and also qualified for state meet. Dave Reyes and Mike Simmons were Seaholm's other SMA champions.

SHS softball squad swings to six wins

Seaholm's girls softball team did quite well in the spring of 1974 as they managed to put some wins on their record—a feat they hadn't managed for two long years. Two assets that helped the Maplettes win this year were Cathy Frye and Beth Maxwell. Both contributed with their bats; Cathy provided defense as center fielder and Beth performed a good job as pitcher for the squad.

Other team members added spirit and encouragement. New members were full of energy and eagerness and worked hard to improve their skills and techniques. The first few games were rough but problems were easily solved and Seaholm ended the year with six wins and four losses.

Seaholm vs. Hazel Park proved to be an exciting game with the Maplettes winning 11 to 2. Beth Maxwell pitched excellently while Cathy Frye added another homerun to her total. Cindy Puls, Fran Centomini and Mary Williams all socked homeruns in the big second inning and from then on there was no stopping the girls.

Laurie Kendall is ready to kill the ball, knocking in the go ahead run for Seaholm in the game against Berkley.

Track, baseball teams do well

Spring sports fared well during the 1974 season. The track team in particular did very well. Excellent performances by Jeff Leestma, Jeff Tunison, Don Walker and John Gardner in the mile, 100 yard dash, two mile and pole vault respectively helped Seaholm obtain a third place standing in the SMA. In addition, Gardner set a new school record of 14 feet in the pole vault.

The Maple diamondmen also had a good year under Coach Sackett, but lost out finally to Royal Oak Kimball in both the SMA race and the state baseball tournament. There were many fine players on the team and an exceptional performance was turned in by pitcher Jim Kazanski, who made the All-SMA team as a junior.

SMA title falls to SHS

The racquet squad had another great year, winning the SMA championship for the third time in a row. Co-captain Bruce Braverman led the team to victory as he took number one singles in the SMA tourney as well as being awarded the William Beel Tennis Scholarship. The number one doubles combination of Jeff Secrest and Sandy Dickerson helped a great deal towards Seaholm's outstanding final standing in the SMA.

Returning players Pete Biske, Sandy Dickerson, Pat Flock, Wyndham Gary, Doug Restrict, John Potter and Jim Walbridge should easily make a strong foundation for this year's team.

The splendor of beauty...

Students, themselves, play an integral role in the development of a high school. A school is a school until the students make it what they want it to be.

There are many ways to make a school what you want. Probably the best way is through student government because sophomores, juniors and seniors can all have their say. Changes can also be made through individual class steering committees.

Many contributions were made by Seaholmites during the year. Students joining together to give blood so that the entire student body would be insured, if necessary, is a prime example.

Seaholm is here for our use, it's all ours for the taking. We must make of it what we will.

Leaders succeed with year's work

Seaholm's junior and sophomore classes had excellent leadership this past year.

Despite the diversified outside interests of the junior officers, they were able to coordinate the activities of the class. Juniors had a successful Field Day and then concentrated their efforts on raising money and planning J-Hop.

Sophomore officers worked well together as a team. They planned a good Field Day and got the class to pull together and become active. The sophs sponsored the first dance of the year as their fund raiser.

4. Chris Duris talks with Mrs. McLeod who helped the class write their Field Day cheer.

Sophs adjust to SHS

When coming to Seaholm from one of the junior highs, many sophomores find the adjustment a hard one to make. They are confronted with a larger school; they have to cope with new teachers, new courses and new rules and regulations.

This year's crop of sophomores learned to cope early and well. Much outstanding talent surfaced as leaders acted to make the sophomore class successful.

Prove abilities

Sophomores made a good showing at Field Day '74. Their first place in marching and three firsts—in girls' sack race, girls' egg throw and the mystery event—proved their ability to work together as a class.

Class president Dave Gillam and Field Day co-chairmen Susan Rexford and Wendy Lecklicker led the sophomore attempt to upset the upperclassmen.

Sophs use yellow color for '74 Field Day theme

In spite of their late start (they had to wait until officers were elected and the class organized), the sophomores made a fine showing in Field Day '74. The class worked together under the direction of Field Day chairman Wendy Lecklider. Upon drawing yellow as their color, the sophs put together banner, costumes, song and cheer to the theme of "Yellow Submarine", a song and movie made famous by the Beatles.

The Class of '77 garnered a total of 80 points and are already looking forward to more success next year.

Activities involve teens

One of the many facets of Seaholm is its ability to involve almost every student in some activity. Sports, music, drama, journalism, tutoring or club activities call forth activity from the students and sophomores try to find something that they are interested in. Each student can choose the right activity for him. They provide a welcome relief from the demanding academic schedule and an outlet for creative ability.

Sophs face choice

Sophomores, upon arrival at Seaholm, are confronted with what may be an entirely different course structure than what they have experienced previously. Not only is the choice of courses wider and more varied, but the student is allowed more freedom as to which courses he feels is right for himself.

This year a new program entitled WIAA (What It's All About) was offered during the first ten weeks to all sophomores. It served as a introduction to Seaholm.

Seaholmites attain high academic achievements

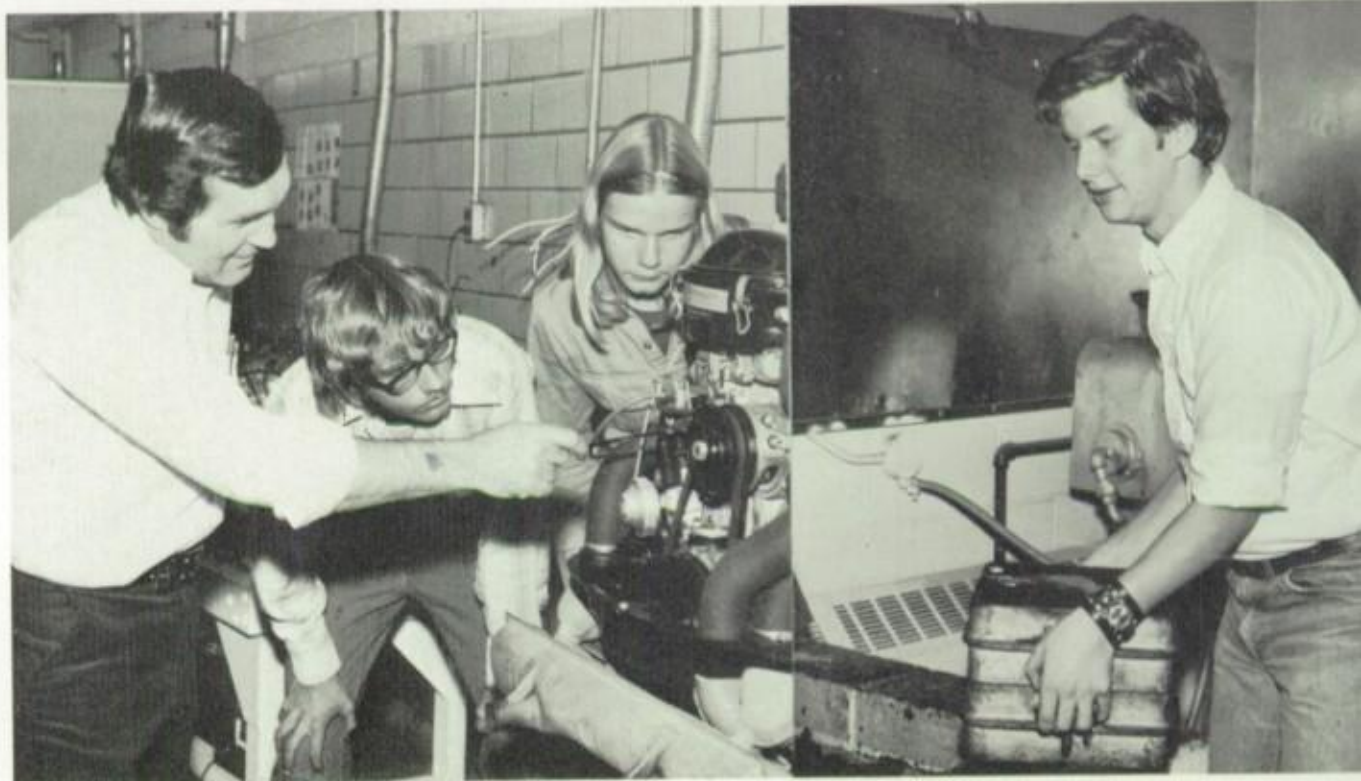

The academic program at Seaholm is the most important facet of the school. Obviously, education is what the students are here for. The many and varied courses at SHS illustrate the wide knowledge that can be achieved by any student willing to learn.

Although Seaholm is primarily geared toward the college-bound student (almost 85% enter college after graduation), every student can choose a schedule that will fit his personal ability. Students can excel at Seaholm because it has fine personnel, fine facilities and a fine student body.

Variety of sports open to wanting sophomores

New sophomores, on entering Seaholm, are presented with a large and varied selection of sports activities. Most of the varsity sports have a junior varsity squad and if they don't, sophomores are welcome to come out and practice with the varsity. Perhaps cross country and wrestling are the two sports where sophomores immediately make a name for themselves but sophs are known to have excelled in all sports competition.

Most sophomores are free of the pressures and tensions of varsity competition so they can devote themselves to learning and improving skills. One other thing they learn is teamwork, outgrowing junior high school rivalries and meshing together as one team for Seaholm.

To an athlete, sports may be his life. His diet, his sleeping habits, his free time, his grades are influenced by his sport. And sophomores are no exception as they enter Seaholm and partake of one or more of the many sports offered.

Each and every sophomore is given the chance to try out and participate in a sport. Sports are an excellent outlet for a student's abundance of spirit.

Leaders command

The junior year is a busy and productive one. It is the point in high school where the future leaders are identified and put to work. Eleventh graders are faced with tremendous responsibilities but the leaders selected by their peers handle them confidently.

Whatever the need, someone comes forth to serve. If artists are needed, the class has them; if money is needed to be raised, people come forth with ideas and work. If leaders are needed to serve on committees, attend conferences or visit schools, juniors volunteer for the job.

Byerlein guides Juniors in preparation for J-Hop

The Juniors, Class of 1976, worked hard and diligently all year planning one of the year's biggest social events — J-Hop 1975.

Making plans far in advance, the J-Hop committee headed by J-Hop chairman Anne Byerlein first selected a theme — "Between Yesterday and Today" which is a poem written by Nahil Gibran. Members then set up their publicity and printed tickets reflecting the seniors' past Field Day themes. The Hillcrest Country Club in Mount Clemens was secured for the dance. Many people felt that Mount Clemens was too far away but after seeing the magnificent ballroom, it was agreed that the trip was worth it.

To raise money for J-Hop the Juniors sold doughnuts at football games, sold candles at Christmas and throughout the entire year peddled candy bars. The candy sales especially were successful due to persistent sellers and Seaholm's voracious appetite.

Formal invitations were mailed to all seniors, faculty members and Board of Education members. The efforts of all concerned culminated in a wonderful evening, May 16.

1. Anne Byerlein, J-Hop chairman '75, whose invitation to J-Hop symbolized the formality of the dance. 2. Susie Gregg, Pauline Obey, Sue Utley, Anne Wallace, Dave Camel, Jenny Booth, Jill Wandel, Gordon Eason, Shari Streit, Lisa Dickhout were the people who made J-Hop '75 a reality.

Class of '76 comes close

The junior class of '76 almost succeeded in winning Field Day '74. A mere two points—106-104—separated the winning seniors from the Class of 1976.

Junior victories in such events as tug-'o-war, barrel race and boys' egg toss helped the juniors achieve their high final score. Similar firsts for banner and costumes also helped. The junior class president, Sue Miller, and Field Day chairman, Phil Siegel, spent many summer days planning for the fall event.

Juniors almost win FD

Performing extremely well in Field Day '74, the junior class benefited from many nights of after school practice on sports, marching and cheers as well as from hours of work on costumes and the banner. Only two third places were earned this year.

The Class of '76 almost bumped the seniors as they came within two points of total victory.

Despite heavy load juniors are active

Even though juniors have a heavy academic load, many find time to involve themselves in the extra-curricular activities of the school. The music program, publications, dramatics and clubs call upon the efforts of hundreds of students to make them successful.

Is this participation work? No one really denies this but the work, though long and hard, is the labor of love and the rewards high to those who stick with it. It's a joy to work for Seaholm High School.

Seaholm is known

Seaholm High School is known nationally for its excellent college preparatory program. Students are offered a wide and varied range of subjects.

English, social studies and art courses are examples of those that have changed to different time lengths (10 weeks to a full year) in order to vary the program. Math, meanwhile, has kept the traditional time periods while adding new classes, i.e. computer programming.

Diversity prevails

There is no doubt that the academic program at Seaholm includes almost everything that a student could ask for. Ten week courses in English, social studies and art blend with the traditional science and math classes.

A relative freedom of choice allows students to choose courses that interest them as specific graduation requirements have been lowered. However, most juniors take a full schedule of five and sometimes six classes as they strive to meet college entrance requirements and dictates of their own desires.

Seaholm sports benefit

Just as the junior year is a challenging one in the academic areas, so is the junior sports year. This is the time that the student athlete peaks — this is the time that the student athlete puts together his knowledge of the sport and some experience to blossom as the backbone of the various teams. As juniors, the athletes may not be the stars, but they are the indispensable lesser lights that make up the squads.

Sports is an outlet for excess energy; sports builds healthy bodies; sports provide a way to learn to meet both victory and defeat with equal grace. Such attributes are not found in any other school related activity.

Hoaxers gain fame

Seaholm's "royalty" appeared in public Jan. 17 when a group of students, mostly juniors paraded as a Prince of Greece and his entourage, visited McDonald's on Greenfield for a delectable American lunch.

The visit caused considerable attention as the restaurant had to be "prepared" for the "royalty" but the outcome was a huge success with coverage in the Detroit Free-Press, the Observer-Eccentric and an appearance on TV for the hoaxers.

Seniors lead active but happy year

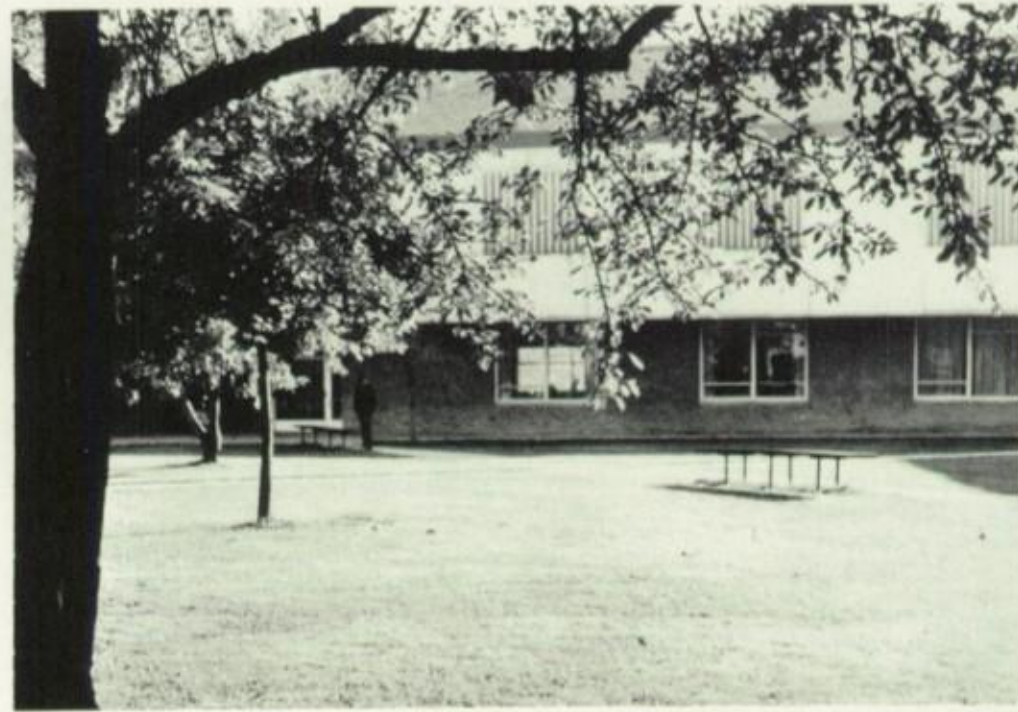

Seniors have a lot to remember about their lives in Seaholm High School. They'll remember the building itself as well as all the activities that took place in it.

The year was a busy one for the graduating class. Field Day competition was rough but through careful planning and organization the victory was won. Long practices and hard work made Swing Out a success. A sun trip to the Bahamas was organized for the "it's over" party after the traditional Commencement.

Class leaders cause action

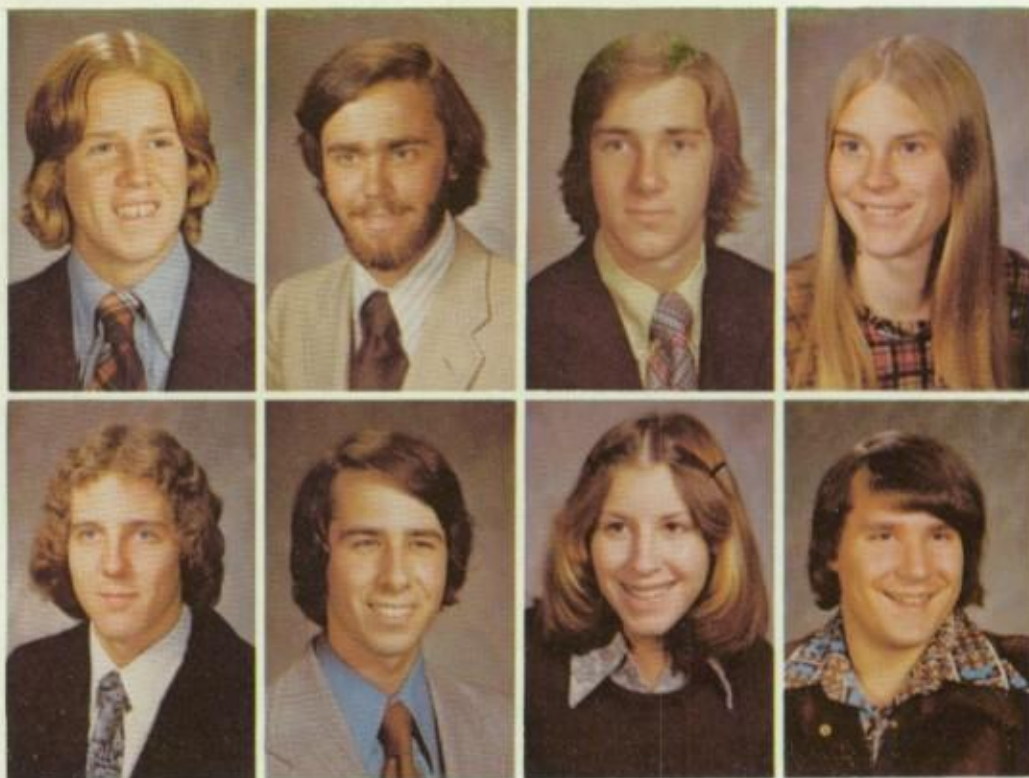

The lack of homerooms during the year caused the class of '75 to rely more on the efforts of its leaders and steering committee to conduct the business of the class. These dedicated workers came through in high style to make this year's senior class one of the most active ever.

Led by president Don Cameron and guided by adviser Miss Chesney, who played a vital part in the decisions and accomplishments of the class, seniors finished what they had set out to do.

Seniors gain the edge during sports events

Field Day '74 was a big, but close, victory for the senior class. Of the winning accumulation of points, 51 were scored in the sports events. Although the seniors started strong by winning the flag shuttle relay, things started downhill after that and the class of '75 had to rally to gain a narrow five point margin over the juniors at the end of the sports competition.

The seniors won both three-legged races and sack races (they managed only a tie for first in the girls' sack race).

The cancellation of all night time practices may have had an effect on the relatively poor sports showing but the determination of the seniors to win Field Day came through in the end.

Senior costume adds color to FD theme

Walt Disney's character "Pinocchio" provided the basis for the senior class Field Day theme. Dressed as the popular puppet, seniors paraded to victory.

Seniors were proud of their costumes: a German type of shorts outfit, bow ties, a small hat with feather, and candy cone noses and appropriate make-up. Unfortunately, because of the cold, wet weather, many noses began drooping and falling off.

Senior spirits were dampened when it was announced that they were last in marching.

Beautiful '75 banner displays class theme

Leading the seniors down Cranbrook in the Field Day parade was the senior banner displaying the theme — "We've got no strings to tie us down." Standing out in 3-D form, Pinocchio and Jiminy Cricket were positioned ahead of the storybook senior theme.

During the song and cheer, seniors were led by Luke Vermeulen as Geppetto; Laurie Kale as Jiminy Cricket; and Laura Innes as the real Pinocchio. Before the start of the class presentation, they presented the story of how Pinocchio's strings were cut. The senior song was "I've Got No Strings" out of the movie, "Pinocchio" and led up to a high point when the seniors all pulled off their noses at the end.

Tension was unbearable and the seniors were dazed until the announcement that they had won first for song and cheer — thereby winning Field Day!

Students remember various experiences

Seaholm High School, begun in 1950, has had twenty-two graduating classes from its present building although it is one of the oldest secondary schools in Oakland County.

But what kinds of things do students remember about their school after graduation? They remember their old teachers, their lockers, the commons and the johns, their homework and classes, and their friends.

Former Seaholmites return faithfully each year to find remembered things changing. The teachers retire and replaced with new, younger instructors; locker combinations are changed; the commons is never the same; the johns are either better or worse; homework seems to be lighter but really isn't; classrooms are more crowded; and the majority of friends have left. However, Seaholm will always be basically the same to its old friends who remember the school as it was, not as it is.

Stage work appeals to Seaholm seniors

Acting and role playing appeal to many seniors as evidenced by the work they put in on Seaholm's drama productions. Two all-school plays—Charley's Aunt and Oklahoma—offered Seaholmites a chance to 'strut the boards' or work behind the scenes. Class work in acting and dramatics classes as well as plays given in Flex and Block provided acting outlets.

Seniors lend a hand in extra curriculars

Extra curricular activities contribute a great deal to the excitement of Seaholm. For many, sports are the only extra curricular activity but for hundreds of others, a wide variety of clubs and organizations make demands on students' time. Seniors, who supposedly have more spare time than either juniors or sophomores, spend hours becoming involved.

BUNA, for instance, meets constantly, planning for the two day mock General Assembly in March. Ski club devotes one afternoon and night a week during the season to this winter activity. French club visits French restaurants and goes to French cultural attractions. Varsity club, AFS-YFU and the Seaholm Prayer group appeal to many students.

Students can also contribute to school without actually joining these groups by doing volunteer work—working in the library, ushering or working on student-parent committees to better school life.

Senior schedules provide opportunities for choosing

Academics: when students hear that word they automatically think of English, social studies, science, math and foreign language. But these five areas are just the basic ones in which Seaholm offers courses. After two very long years of hard and diligent work, Seaholm seniors are eager to plan relatively easy schedules for their last year.

Graduation requirements have been lessened over the years to the point where many students have satisfied most prerequisites by the end of their junior year. College entrance requirements have also been met for the most part so personal desires can be indulged during the senior year. Work in art, music, home ec, business and co-curricular classes like debate and journalism can be taken. Some seniors take fewer courses leaving more time for clubs and extra-curricular events. Some seniors even arrange to graduate early, leaving school in January to work or begin their college careers.

Varied program provides choice

The diversity of Seaholm's academic program allows seniors to pick and choose from over 100 courses. English, art and social studies provide a multitude of ten week courses while the other subject areas list semester and year courses in a wide variety.

Boys have broken the sex barrier by taking home ec courses; likewise girls have enrolled in the industrial arts program. Senior gym classes are coed these days and the grade level is forgotten as seniors, juniors and sophomores mix well in beginning and advanced classes.

Leaders provide flair and spirit to marchers

Seaholm's majorettes don't necessarily have to be members of the concert band since try outs are open to everyone. But often they are. And it is true that the drum major must be a senior member of the band. This year Jordan McCormack followed in his older brother Keith's footsteps by leading the band. He was backed up by five majorettes, three of them seniors.

These six individuals are the focus of attention as the band performs at football games and parades. They add color to the band's shows.

Band members work long hours

Work, work and more work. That's what band members do especially during the marching season.

Band members constantly are faced with practice sessions both in school and individually. A minimum of ten hours are spent weekly at this chore. And then during the fall season, band members have added to their instrument practice sessions marching practice. For an hour of each day they march up and down the football field perfecting their formations for their half time shows.

1. Tim Moran and his tuba put a different view on the Seaholm band. 2. As part of the brass section, Bill Fry stays in step as the band marks time on the field. 3. Synchronization is the key word with band members Tom Crady, Doug Goad, Jeff Ewald, Mike Kroswek, Dave Moen and Marnie Toulmin.

Participation shows seniors enjoy music

Seniors have always taken a keen interest in Seaholm's music program. Barb Zmich and Brad French have been members of the orchestra since it was reinstated three years ago. Scores of seniors have sung with one or more choral group and a number of graduates have participated in the school's most respected vocal groups, the Ensemble and Madrigals.

Seniors lead Seaholm athletic squads

Seniors have always played a big part in Seaholm's athletic program. Generally the team's strength comes from the seniors who provide the leadership and experience that the various teams need. As the older athletes, the seniors know what to do and can guide the younger underclassmen.

Seaholm offers a variety of athletics for both boys and girls. Perhaps the most unusual for high schools is soccer. This year the Stomper team claimed the state championship under new coach Mike Mislinay.

Memories are good

Memories—that's what the end of school life at Seaholm means to many seniors. Most of the memories are good; others tend to be not so good. But whichever, the Class of '75 worked hard to get where they are today and they are glad they did it. Final preparations for Swing Out, Senior dinner and graduation added quite a bit of work to the already heavy senior work load.

Three years of high school can seem like a lifetime, but when filing into the gym for commencement, the sophomore year seems like it was just yesterday. Commencement marks the end for some and the beginning for others as the future holds promise of varied activities. But the past holds only memories.

School winners exemplify spirit

Beth Boynton, Laurie Kale and Rick LaFave are three seniors everyone is happy to know. They really deserve the Who's Who awards.

A friendly smile, a warm hello, a sincere friend and a willing worker—this is Beth Boynton whose bubbling spirit shows in her many school activities. This year Beth has devoted most of her time and effort to cheerleading as she is a captain. For the past three years Beth has headed up the banner committee for Field Day.

Laurie Kale is so full of life and in so many activities that it seems at times that she is more than one person. As a senior she played the part of Jimminy Cricket in Field Day as she helped lead the senior in Pinocchio's victory. Laurie's greatest love has been that of cheerleading during her years at Seaholm.

Always poised, Rick LaFave is efficient, accurate and determined in everything he undertakes. More than that he is a great and all-round guy. He was a soccer player throughout his Seaholm career. Rick was accepted into the NHS as a junior and was elected president as a senior.

Filled schedules mark nominees

Friendly, outgoing, and concerned are three characteristics that Carol Mimura, Mary Ann Robb and Pam Schmidt all have in common. Three busier girls could never be found in Seaholm as their schedules are always filled.

Carol, Mary Ann and Pam all have individual interests at Seaholm, but many of their involvements are the same. All three of the girls have been active participants in Student Congress bringing about changes in school policies and organizing Congress-sponsored activities for students. Also they are all members of National Honor Society.

Carol Mimura's biggest accomplishments in Seaholm have been her positions in the class steering committee. As a sophomore she was president of the class and during her junior and senior year in the steering committee she retained the position of secretary.

The girl chosen from the senior class to receive the D.A.R. award was Mary Ann Robb. Many reasons were involved in the choice, but her citizenship and leadership qualities played a big part in the selection.

As J-Hop general chairman Pam Schmidt certainly had a load on her shoulders. Pam's planning and organizing made the event a memorable one for all. Among her many involvements at Seaholm, Pam has sung with the choir for three years; went to Girls' State as a junior; and represented West Germany in BUNA's general assembly.

*For yesterday is already a dream and tomorrow is only a vision.
but today, well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope
Look well, therefore, to this day.*

The 1975 Piper has become a reality due to the cooperation of many, many people. Cooperation was very important due to new ideas that took extra time to be worked out, such as the all color senior section. The senior class deserves much credit for the success of that section. Almost everyone had their picture taken in color, which cost them more, but which I hope made their senior yearbook mean more to them.

Many thanks go to Mr. Thomas C. Hammel our adviser who labored long extra hours to help make deadlines. Also thanks to Mr. Mack Suprunowicz of Modern Yearbook Co. and people at Bill Williams studio for their much needed help in our endeavors. Last but not least thanks to the staff of the Piper for all their hard work.

Hopefully the 1975 Piper shows what we have learned through our experiences at Seaholm and captures the memories of 1975.
